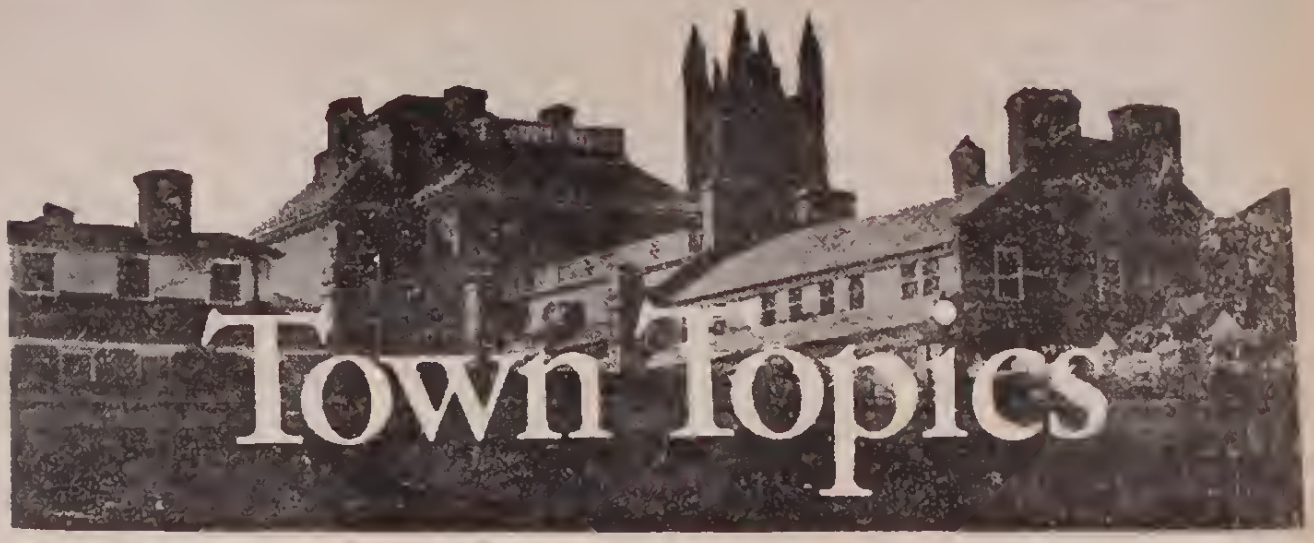
ANNUAL BACK-TO-SCHOOL ISSUE



VOL. XXVIII, NO. 25 THURSDAY, AUGUST 23, 1973 15c At All Newsstands

Future of PHS Building Regional Board's Most Pressing Problem

Overshadowing everything else in the Princeton school picture this year will be a final decision on what to do with the Princeton High School building.

"It will be a terribly difficult decision," warns Hannah Fox, president of the Princeton Regional Board of Education. "There's the uncertain state of the economy and the uncertain state of school financing. We're not hard-pressed by an overpopulated school so it's hard to have a sense of urgency, but we must act."

Very early in September, the school board will start a series of public meetings on the fate of the old high school building. If all goes well, the board wants to make its decision in December or January. The necessary bond issue vote could be held as early as late spring, Mrs. Fox says.

"We want to find out what people in Princeton REALLY think," she continues. We want to sense the feelings in the community."

"What we think about education is reflected in the high school building, and we hope to reach the people who are truly concerned about good, sound education. We also hope to convince people who object to tax raises for education that this is a good investment."

Mrs. Fox says with a smile that she and her colleagues on the school board hope to make the town well-aware of the physical deficiencies of the high school and how they affect the educational program.

"We know we must spend $1 million correcting the most basic of these deficiencies. In the past few years, we haven't done any major work on the high school building because we knew of this need to make a fundamental decision."

Like the consulting engineers who spent six months examining the building, Mrs. Fox speaks first of the obsolescent ventilating system.

The consultants have warned the school board that in the "new," 1955 section of the building particularly, the ventilating system is hazardous and "specifically contrary" to national fire codes and to New Jersey's own regulations.

It was early in June that the school board announced the findings in the $33,000 consultants' report. Recommendations were explained in a public hearing (attended by about two dozen people) and after that hearing, board members settled down for a summer of talk and thought about the high school, in advance of the public meetings planned for this fall.

Four options are before the community: build a new high

PHS, With Petrillo at the Helm, to Start Year With 9 More Courses and 321 Fewer Students

No home-rooms, computerized report-cards and scheduling, bus-rides to Valley Road classrooms — and 321 fewer students.

Those are some of the new things students will find when they go back to Princeton High under its new principal, George Petrillo.

"Abandoning homeroom was a big decision," Mr. Petrillo comments. "With homeroom, you always knew where everyone was! But you can't do much in eight minutes, so we decided to expand it or get rid of it. Now, we'll have the flag salute and announcements at the start of first period."

Attendance — which is very important because our state aid and re-imbursement and so on are affected by attendance — will be taken in English class. We did that because everybody takes English and accounting is a lot more efficient with 17 English teachers than with 63 homeroom teachers, the way it was before."

Minutes gained by eliminating homeroom have been added to passing time. Students will now have four minutes instead of three to get from class to class, and Mr. Petrillo believes this will do much to ease corridor frenzy.

Some Good Things. "I want to continue the good things and expand them," the new principal says eagerly. "We'll keep the open campus, for example, although with some revisions. I hope — in response to student request — that we can free up some classrooms for quiet study; the library doesn't always meet that need. And I hope to offer small gym areas for work-outs. But we're limited by facilities."

"The open campus came about because of two things," Mr. Petrillo recalls. "One: study hall was a waste of time; two: students are a lot more mature in many respects than we used to be, and they should have some decision themselves on how they spend their free time. So, now when they have an unassigned period, they can work on an Independent Study project with a teacher, talk with counsellors or department chairman, go to a Resource Center — in foreign language, English-social studies or math — continue class work in a lab, if one is available."

"The student can also go outside and relax, or to the cafeteria or student lounge. What we don't want, is students aimlessly roaming the halls. It's too noisy for classrooms."

Mr. Petrillo says the high school is "strongly encouraging" students to take five courses, instead of the more customary four. This would give only one unassigned period.

"We have 31 new courses," he says enthusiastically, "a total of 201, with 22 dropped, for a net increase of nine. So with all these good courses, we want students to elect more, and most of them have."

UPBEAT: George Petrillo, new principal of Princeton High, will emphasize the strengths of the school during the coming year. As a start, freshmen will see an orientation day, a slide show made by students in the Media Department. "It shows students enthusiasm and pride in the school," is Mr. Petrillo's comment.

Afro - American History. Among the new offerings Mr. Petrillo points to a full - year course in Afro-American History, taught by Don Cartwright. It's already filled. PHS will continue to offer a related course, the Black Studies Program in the English department, to be given this year by Don Gilpin, a Princeton University graduate who did his student teaching under William Cook, originator of the course.

This Is Princeton

Something else new this year — for sophomores, back-to-back team teaching for 40 students. Emphasis will be on the audio-visual approach to English and social studies and the two teachers — Marianne Hartmann and Toni Nielsen — will have the same group of students for 45 to 90 minutes.

"I'm pretty excited about the possibilities here," is Mr. Petrillo's comment. "If it goes well, we may do more next year."

Freshmen this year will be in two "houses." Last year, there was only one. In a house, 75 students have the same three teachers in English, math and science, a structure which gives teachers a chance to know individual students better, and to do class planning more conveniently.

Freshmen have been assigned to houses more or less on a random basis, although some were recommended for such a spot by eighth - grade guidance staff. About 60 freshmen will not be in a house.

Busing Unpopular. Busing to Valley Road? Well, nobody is happy about it, Mr. Petrillo concedes. But that drop of around 300 in PHS student population is mostly on paper. Within the actual PHS building, the drop is only about 150 because students who used to attend classes across the street in John Witherspoon, are now back in the fold.

"Every room in the PHS building is filled and this is an unhealthy situation," Mr. Petrillo says glumly. "We met for more than a month wrestling with this problem."

The precise use of the VR building hasn't yet been determined, but some classrooms certainly will be used. And Phys. Ed. classes in things like wrestling and gymnastics, will be held in the VR gym and cafeteria. "We can set up the mats and leave them — a real help," is the principal's comment.

Use of a computer for scheduling reports, and attendance has Mr. Petrillo so happy that he said last week, "We could open school tomorrow!" Computerized records were tried once before but with singular lack of success. This time, the principal says, "We have a local firm — the other one was out of town — and we have more confidence."

Hoped for, but not yet actual:

Weekly meetings between Mr. Petrillo and a cross-section of juniors, plus Student Council members. "To listen and exchange ideas," is the principal's hope, and "If concerns can be acted on, they will be."

A "big brother" kind of program to give some students additional attention. Five or six students and a teacher who is not one of their classroom teachers, would

SCHOOL BOARD, ANYONE? Fresh from a summer game of tennis, Princeton's school board president Hannah Fox talks about the school year ahead. Most important agenda item: what to do about the old high school building.

PHS Building

school for about $8 million; remodel the existing building for about $4.8 million; do a thinner remodeling job for about $3.7 million, or simply do the most basic, rock-bottom patching for $1 million.

And although Mrs. Fox and the board are closely occupied with this pressing decision about the school building, they have been looking farther into the future as well, in talks with members of the planning board.

"The school board has trouble planning more than five years ahead, because we are so busy with day-to-day matters," Mrs. Fox explains, "but we wanted to talk with the planning board about their new 'village' concept of housing for Princeton, which has a 20-year planning goal."

The planning board's village concept proposes that by 1990, Princeton should be a community of villages, each with 24,000 people, each with its own school, community center, cluster of stores, and so on.

What would the demographic make-up of these villages be? the board wants to know. How many school-age kids would live in them? What kind of specific timetable exists?

"After all, if the population of Princeton goes from its present 25,000 up to 40,000 we may need a second high school," she points out. The Townships official map marks out a tract on Cherry Hill Road known as the Foulet tract, as the possible location of a new high-school building.

Moving closer to the present than 1990, Mrs. Fox and the board see another community organization that can help in high school planning: the Parent Teacher Organization in each school, and in the system as a whole.

"They will probably play a big part in helping us inform the community about high school options and helping us make our decision," Mrs. Fox thinks. "We want very much to reach the parents of elementary school and middle school children because these are the ones who are going to benefit from whatever action we take on the high school."

Princeton's school board, not always a fountain-head of inner harmony, may be more united on the high school than on most issues.

"I see no board division on the traditional lines, where the high school is concerned," Mrs. Fox declares. "I sense that everybody on the board wants the best possible plan that the community will accept. Though this may not be the plan all of us on the board will like the best."

Then she pauses for a moment. "Where community acceptance is concerned, I think some board members are more optimistic than others."

Going to High School?

Schedules will be mailed to every student who will be going to Princeton High. You report to your first period class because there are no longer home rooms.

The first day of school is Wednesday, September 5 and it will be a regular "Wednesday," which means only half a day so the Wednesday Program itself can begin.

Freshmen at the high school will start one day earlier, on Tuesday, September 4. They will meet at 1:15 p.m. in the auditorium where they will see a slide presentation of life at PHS. Later, they will go through their "day," in abbreviated scheduling. Upperclassmen will be welcoming guides.

meet often enough to establish a good relationship. Discussion of major and minor problems, help with study habits, a general "caring" would be the idea.

No conflict with the guidance department, in Mr. Petrillo's view — he was director of guidance — because that department already has a big load. "The new program wouldn't supercede," he explains, "it would just be an extra arm and it would personalize the school for these kids. We keep hearing the school doesn't 'care.' Well, we DO care, but the message hasn't gotten to all the kids."

More large, group lectures, drawing on the scholarship of top PHS teachers and allowing them to reach more students.

The addition to the interim report to parents, of comment when a student has done "a fine job."

Exploration of more flexible scheduling, perhaps with double periods, more team-teaching, more combining of classes. "It is essential that we do this," Mr. Petrillo emphasizes.

"I'm excited by the prospect of the year ahead at the high school," Mr. Petrillo says, "faculty have stopped in this summer and volunteered their help, and I think it will be a good year."

SCHOOL BOARD TO MEET

For Miscellaneous Actions. The teacher's contract isn't quite ready—a few stipends remain to be negotiated—but four other contracts with school staff are expected to be ratified when the Princeton Regional Board of Education meets next Tuesday.

The 8 p.m. meeting will be held in new quarters: an air-conditioned room in the Valley Road building reached from the main entrance to Witherspoon. The room is up the flight of stairs to the main hall, down the hall to the right in the southwest corner of the building. Parking is available in the lot next to the building on Witherspoon Street.

The board will act on a long list of bids ranging from bus routes to rental of musical instruments, wil lact on teacher appointments, and will adopt a salary guide for cafeteria and part-time workers not covered in other contracts.

NEW BUDGET SYSTEM

On Municipal Agendas. When Township Committee meets Monday night, it will adopt a new system of constructing municipal budgets, and when Borough Council next meets—September 11—it will adopt the same procedure.

The plan involves budget preparation by the two administrators, with a longer schedule of public hearings. For example, by November 15 administrators will have complete public hearings on budget requests from various departments, and by November 20, public hearings on budgets of joint Borough-Township agencies will have concluded.

The two governing bodies have also set down a new rule: budget requests must be in to administrators no later than October 22 for department heads, and November 1 for joint bodies.

The new plan is the work of Township Committee Finance Chairman Abbot Low Moffat, and Borough Council Finance Chairman Arthur P. Morgan.

TRAILER VS. CAR

39,630 Gallons of Acid Spilled. A tractor trailer loaded with 39,630 gallons of heated kosher stearic acid was traveling on the downgrade of Bayard Lane last Wednesday afternoon approaching the intersection of Leigh Avenue.

Suddenly, a car came out of Leigh and stalled in the truck's lane. The result: a spectacular crash which left the busy intersection awash with acid and forced traffic to be detoured for at least two hours while firemen washed down the spill and wreckers removed the vehicles.

After impact, the trailer jackknifed, rolled over on its side and broke away from the tractor. The 39,000 gallons of acid spilled out on the roadway. Ptl. Charles Harris who invsetigated, reported it was evident the truck driver had applied his brakes prior to impact because the wheels of the tractor and trailer were locked.

Police identified the truck driver as William Barron, 44, of Philadelphia. The upended trailer owned by Arway, Inc. sustained heavy damage.

Susan E. Roberts, 24, of Linden, the driver of a 1969 sedan whose entire left side was damaged, was ticketed by Ptl. Harris for failing to stop. She was taken to Princeton Medical Center by Ptl. Gerald Patterson where she was treated for contusions of her left leg and hip.

Mrs. Roberts, interviewed at the hospital by Ptl. Harris, told him that she did not see any stop sign, only a sign reading "One Way, Do Not Enter." So, she related, she pulled into the intersection intending to make a left turn.

When she looked to her left she saw the truck coming down the hill only three to four car lengths away. According to the police report, she told them she panicked, stopped her car and was struck. The impact pushed her car 54 feet. The accident occurred at 3:37 p.m.

Hit and Run. A 17 year-old bicyclist was struck by a hit and-run driver Friday on Wiggins Street.

Lynn Killam, 130 Jefferson Street, the victim, was taken to Princeton Medical Center by Susan H. Shillaber, 241 Moore Street, who was directly behind the hit and run car and was a witness to the mishap. Miss Killam was treated for a laceration of the eye.

Miss Killam told police that she was riding down Wiggins when a car traveling at a high rate of speed made a right turn onto Vandeventer and struck her bicycle, knocking her to the road. It continued on toward Nassau Street without stopping, she said.

She described it as a small, red car. She was unable to tell police whether a man or woman was driving.

Changing of the Guard

It isn't History I
I mind,
It's leaving summertime
Behind

Summer is really still with us, as the forecasts for frequent showers indicate. Rain Wednesday will be followed by gradual clearing but the Man isn't optimistic about the weekend.

Clouds will begin to gather again Friday afternoon, he says, and Saturday morning may be wet. Sunday's outlook is for clear skies, and moderate temperatures will prevail throughout the Saturday period.

Mishap on Mercer Street. Two cars collided Thursday at 11:30 a.m. on Mercer Street near the Mercer Extension.

Rae E. Hurley, 40, 35 Sycamore Lane, Skillman, was ticketed by Ptl. Bernard Lenhardt for careless driving. The front end of her car was extensively damaged.

Mrs. Hurley rammed into the rear of a car operated by Harry D. Howe, 25, of Belle Mead. Brian E. Hurley, 14, a passenger in the Hurley car, suffered contusions when his head hit the windshield. Both were taken in a patrol car to the Medical Center where they were treated and released.

Mr. Howe had told police that the car in front of his was traveling about 10 miles an hour. "I had just slowed and was still stepping on the brake when I was hit," he said.

CAR, TIRES STOLEN

From Nini Plymouth. A 1973 Plymouth Cuda ($4,273.95) and 13 tires valued at $679 were stolen last week from Nini Plymouth Chrysler on Route 206.

Also taken were two calculators from a front office, a $90 AM/FM radio, five tools and a case of coke. The tires had been removed from an overhead rack in the repair section.

The theft took place between 6:15 Friday evening and 9 the next morning when it was reported by Joseph Stettner, a salesman. Township police report that entry was gained by first breaking and then removing a window that led to a service desk. Ptl. David Funk investigated.

Cameras Stolen. Two cameras, a telephoto lens, tripod and other photographic equipment with a combined value

Township police said that the articles were stolen while the owner, Richard Sternberger, was asleep in his bedroom. The cameras and equipment were in an adjoining room. Police added there were no signs of forced entry.

CHECKBOOK TAKEN

From Unlocked Car. Scott Richardson, of Nassau Arms, told Township police that someone had stolen a checkbook from his unlocked car while it was parked in the Princeton Car Wash lot on Alexander Street. The car's radio aerial was also broken, he added.

Mr. Richardson placed the theft and vandalism between 11 Saturday night and 1 Sunday morning. Ptl. Robert Nielsen investigated.

CYCLIST IS ARRESTED

For Carrying Loaded .32. A Trenton motorcyclist was arrested Saturday night by Borough police who charged him with carrying a fully-loaded .32 caliber revolver.

Norris K. Taylor, 20, was charged by Sgt. John J. Bellow with carrying a concealed deadly weapon. He was later released in $1,000 bail, pending his appearance August 29 in Borough Court.

Sgt Bellow had stopped Taylor at Nassau and Olden for failing to observe a stop sign. After checking his license and registration, Sgt. Bellow was in the process of letting Taylor off with just a warning when, as he mounted his cycle, his jacket moved, revealing the shoulder holster. He was immediately placed under arrest

JOHN ST. MAN CHARGED

With Forgery. George McGowan, 26, 246 John Street, was arrested last week on Witherspoon Street by Det Thomas Michaud who had a warrant for his arrest charging him with possession of stolen property, forgery and receiving money under false pretenses. McGowan, released later in his own recognizance, is scheduled to appear in court September 19.

According to police, McGowan's arrest stemmed from his allegedly cashing a stolen check made out for $50 at the First National Bank of Princeton. It had been stolen, police said, from a Princeton University office.

Checkerboard Moves Create New Middle School

If you've ever moved out of one house and into another, you can imagine the logistics of moving a school.

Princeton's school officials have not only moved the Middle School into another building, they have merged the household equipment of the two separate buildings that formerly housed the Middle School — Valley Road and Community Park — so that everything would fit into the single structure of the John Witherspoon Middle School.

"It will be a good year ahead," smiles quiet Virginia Euell, the new principal of the Middle School.

"Most things are OK and ready," announces energetic Ralph Heyman, who planned and executed the move.

Building by building, here's the way it will be, to start:

John Witherspoon Middle School. No "bubble" yet. The inflatable, used as a gym, is still in place behind Community Park. Bids for moving it to a place next to John Witherspoon were too high, and as school board president Hannah Fox says drily, "Not all that many companies move bubbles." Perhaps school crews themselves will move it, with an outside contractor for masonry. Meanwhile, middle school athletes may find themselves back in the Valley Road gym, sharing it with the high school.

BUT SHE'S NOT SITTTING STILL: Virginio Euell, new principal of the John Witherspoon Middle School, in a rare minute of relaxation. Moving the school into a new building has meant full-time-plus for Miss Euell this summer as a science teacher, then moving to administration, she's been with the Middle School since it was started, and is now beginning her sixth year in Princeton.

Metal and wood - working shops won't be ready either, partly because of problems with electrical and construction bids, partly because shop machinery is too heavy for the teen-agers who helped in the move. Home economics rooms aren't ready, because cabinets have to be built.

Because physics labs were installed for high school students to use, John Witherspoon has science rooms that are better and more sophisticated than those in most middle schools, so young scientists can get right to work.

Community Park. Formerly part of the middle school, this building will now be an elementary school, with Eugene Diringer as its principal.

The former library will become an art classroom. A new and expanded library will be made out of the former industrial art and home economics rooms, and these changes haven't been finished yet.

Valley Road. Six classrooms are being rented at $34,200 a year to Jordan Day School, an institution specializing in the care of children with handicaps. The school has been held in buildings at Our Lady of Princeton.

Princeton Township is renting one classroom. It will probably be used by the Health and Welfare department.

The building will house departments that provide services to school staff, and Staff Services, a new department under Constance Vieland designed to combine staff development and curriculum development, will work out of a Resource Center in the former Valley Road library. The former industrial arts area will also be used.

The Center will be a place where teachers can plan, hold work-shops, find the resources they need for curriculum development. Resource people from the teaching staff — some who will be full-time, some part-time — will develop the Center.

These teachers are Ruth Randall (social studies and language arts); Charlotte Danielson (math - science); Raymond Hunt (foreign language); Marilyn Middlebrook (music); Rosemary Blair(art) and environmental education and physical education, to be chosen.

Kenneth Bowers, in media, Jean McDonough in library and Elaine Solomon for the Wednesday Program, will be involved.

Besides Dr. Vieland's Staff Services, Valley Road will be headquarters for Charles Huchet's Student Services — formerly Special Services — and for Wesley Johnson's Personnel Administration.

Some of these departments were formerly in the John Witherspoon building, others were in the Stony Brook Administration building. William Karch's carpentry shop and its crew, have moved out of the high school ("a real boon to teachers who had classrooms above it!" grins Mr. Heyman) and into that part of Valley Road next to the loading ramp on the playground side.

And of course, the high school will send kids to Valley Road for both classroom and gymnasium activities.

How To. Mr. Heymann, Mr. Karch, individual principals and their assistants — including Thornton Grove, former Middle School principal who stayed on to help before moving to his new job — began work on the move in late spring.

In a criss-crossing pattern, teachers were moving out of Community Park and Valley Road and into John Witherspoon, out of John Witherspoon and into Community Park and in some cases, moving to other schools in the sys-

Adults in Increasing Numbers Auditing University's Courses

For many children September is a dreaded time of year that marks the end of vacation and back to school. For more and more adults, however, the thought of going back to school has become a dream instead of a nightmare.

A survey taken two years ago by the Commission on Non-traditional Study showed that 75 percent of the adults contacted wanted to continue their education in some way, shape or form.

The experience of Princeton University, which is now taking limited numbers of non-traditional — that is older — students reflects this increased interest.

Princeton does not yet offer individual courses at night for adults. But it does allow individuals to audit regular courses on an informal basis, provided the instructor's permission is received.

The result has been a steady stream of adults — mostly women in town — sitting in on the University's daily fare of lectures. This September, if past years are any indication, as many as 100 such auditers will take up empty seats alongside the regular undergraduates.

Washed Out. "They come here in a rash in late August, with one child under an arm and the other in a carriage, saying they want to get back into education," said Assistant Registrar Robert E. Van Vranken.

"We tell them there's no reason why they can't audit courses with the instructor's permission and if there's room. But the everyday routine seems to wash them out of class before the end of the term."

Not all are washing out, however, and the continuing success of the older undergraduates has encouraged Princeton to continue to explore ways in which more adults can benefit from its educational resources.

Under the direction of Mary I. Bunting, former dean at Douglass College and former president of Radcliffe, now assistant to Princeton President William G. Bowen, the University is actively considering the notion of establishing a Center for Continuing Education.

Maintainiog Character. In a background report she prepared for a faculty committee studying this matter, Dr. Bunting wrote: "The establishment of an extension school offering an array of academic courses does not seem appropriate for Princeton at this time."

But, she wrote, "if the University is to play a significant role in continuing education it will not suffice simply to open regular classes to a relatively small number of selected individuals living in the area."

What role Princeton actually does take should be determined in light of several concerns, Dr. Bunting stated. "Opening Princeton to commuters would tend to destroy or at least dilute the resident character of a Princeton education which has been of such importance.

"The key here is numbers. We should proceed, but cautiously, evaluating as we go. Recent experience indicates that the presence of selected adult students representing different backgrounds and work experiences can enrich the education of resident students in many ways."

Cutting Edge. The "recent experience" she referred to comes in the form of about 10 full-time and part-time older students who have been enrolled for the past two years in the regular Princeton undergraduate degree program.

From all points of view the older undergraduates, in the forefront of Princeton's continuing education, have succeeded spectacularly.

"The older students have a clear idea of their educational goals," said H. Dennis Gray, Assistant Dean of the College. "They aren't likely to be snowed by the Princeton name."

Experience with the older students, Dean Gray said, "has given me encouragement that the University will do more in this area. The implications of the Bunting report are enormous."

Little to Lose. One such older student is Sharon Nacole, a mother of two, who four years ago decided to pursue her postponed college education. Living then in Yardley, Pa., she studied for two years at Bucks County Community College.

Like any other Bucks student, Mrs. Naeole had to transfer if she wished to continue her education. She wanted a school to which she could commute and that also had a strong politics department.

She applied to Princeton. "It had no stated commitment to older students," she said, "but all I had to lose was the $15 or $20 application fee."

Last year she moved with her children to graduate student housing in the Butler tract. She graduated in June.

General Interest. Miss Naeole wrote her senior thesis on "Suburban Zoning and the Public Interest." She now works as an assistant to Politics Professor Michael Danielson.

"A lot of my friends are looking to go back to school," she said, "although not necessarily Princeton."

Another older student is Mrs. Dede Nini, a life-long Princeton resident, the wife of plumbing contractor Samuel Nini, a life-long Princeton resident, and the mother of three children. She transferred from Mercer County Community College.

In September she will be a second - term junior in the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. Mrs. Nini is a part-time student, taking four years to complete two years work — one of the few special provisions for older students.

Honors Work. A former airline stewardess now in her early 30s, Mrs. Diane MacKinnon graduated with honors in June from the Princeton psychology department. A transfer from Centenary College, she will enter graduate school at Rutgers in September.

The older students are not all women. For Eugene J. Coles the time between high school and college was nine years.

Born and raised in the Bedford - Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn, Mr. Coles enlisted in the Marines, serving as a body guard for President Johnson, and worked in construction in New York before the back-to-school itch struck him.

He made a false start at City University of New York, then applied to Princeton and was accepted. Last June he completed his freshman year.

Not Easy. The examples of these students and the few others like them should not falsely raise hopes of anyone seeking to enroll at the University.

"We are still very selective," said Janet S. Hanson, Assistant Dean of the College. And also very expensive — tuition and other charges do not decrease with the applicant's age. They might be even more of a deterrent than they are for traditional undergraduates, who usually have no families to support.

But these examples do represent one step the University is taking to increase opportunities for older students.

Wrote Dr. Bunting: "There is a wealth of untapped experience and talent in the Princeton community, along with unmet intellectual interests, that could be brought together under academic leadership if we had the appropriate administrative arrangements."

ST. PAUL'S RENOVATED

Two Teachers Added. St. Paul's School begins the 1973-'74 academic year with an increased enrollment, expanded and renovated facilities, and an addition of two new teachers. Not many parochial schools could give such a progress report at this time.

With the first day of classes set for September 5, St. Paul's enrollment already stands at more than 510 pupils — up from 495 at the end of last year.

During the summer the library was renovated and outfitted with records, tapes, films, film strips and periodicals, in addition to books, and renamed the instructional media center.

A fulltime instructor has been hired to coordinate the activities of this room. The old library had been run by a part-time volunteer.

The annex, actually the basement under the main hall of St. Paul's Church, used to be divided into two large classrooms. Now, with the addition of a portable wall and the utilization of an adjoining room, the annex will house two classrooms, a small auditorium and a remedial reading center.

Other Changes. The reading center will also be staffed by a fulltime teacher.

Under the revised space plan, the first floor of St. Paul's will be for primary children and kindergarten through second grades. The second floor will accommodate third and fifth graders.

Grades six through eight will be held on the third floor. Fourth grade will be in the annex.

Elements Are There, But 'Tango' Falls Short

FAMILY PORTRAIT: A little something to hong over the montel. The family is in Slowomir Mrozeck's "Tongo," finol production of the senson for Summer Intime. In the back row are James Shankmen ond Geoff Shloes, hovering protectively over Vicki Poley ond Donna Miklojcik.

In "Tango," Summer Intime's final production of the season at Hamilton Murray Theatre, Polish playwright Slawomir Mrozek has at his disposal two raw materials of good theatre: Conflict and Irony.

The conflict is sharp and continuous between a slatternly family that has cast off every vestige of conventional behavior and appearance to live by the rule of "Do as you please," and the son of the family, a medical student, who tries to bring order and reason into the frowzy household. Irony lies in the fact that it is the older generation which revels in slovenly freedom while the youngest member of the family stands for traditional values.

Mrozek has another theatrical bonus in his cast of characters: grandma, great-uncle, father, mother, mother's friend Eddie (the "basic savage," she calls him), and Ala, who sees no harm in misbehaving with Eddie while waiting for her fiance to turn up for their wedding — here is as colorful a collection of screwballs as one could ask for.

With all this going for it, why does "Tango" — a script which the directors of Summer Intime hailed with enthusiasm — fall short when transferred to the stage? The main fault is the author's volubility. Again and again two characters debate the theme of freedom versus good form in language that would do credit to a college psychology department.

In spite of occasional theatrical surprises and some genuinely funny lines, the discussion proliferates, so that Uncle Eugene's remark, in the middle of Act Three — "It's getting late. I think we should have a bite to eat" — unintentionally strikes a responsive chord in the audience.

Moreover Mrozek's characters tend to wear thin. Their novelty holds us at the outset, but we get used to their eccentricities.

The abrupt turn-around at the beginning of the third act is refreshing, but in general this is a one-idea play which takes too long to resolve the idea. The only suspense is in the question of whose philosophy will win; and with Arthur's disillusioned re-entry in Act Three it is clear (even without the heavy symbolism at the end) that free will and naturalism triumph.

The author's talkiness puts a heavy burden on the principal actors. Long speeches were raced through at break neck speed with little chance for pauses and shading for emphasis.

Given more rehearsal time than is possible in a summer repertory program, the director, Roxanne Hart, would have produced dialogue more naturally timed. With the actors now more at home with the lines, the coming week's performances should be free of this disadvantage.

In particular, Daniel Haughey, as the counter-rebellious son, works valiantly with a part that is at times unbearably didactic. Geoffrey Shlaes, despite some pedantic language, has the vigor and sense of timing to make the part of Stomil, the father, both convincing and amusing.

Of the other characters, Vicki Paley is most successful as Grandma Eugenia. She creates two of the funniest scenes in the play; unwillingly "blessing" the engaged couple, and assembling an audience to watch her die.

The program quotes the New York Times as saying "Tango" is a cross between "Hamlet," "The Cherry Orchard" and "You Can't Take It With You." In a single play these do not mix well. Looking at them separately, however, the "Tango" - viewer may be rewarded at times by its philosophy, at times by its family relationships, at times by its oddball humor.

Remaining performances are at 8:30 p.m. on August 23 through 26.

A final review would be incomplete without a word of thanks and congratulation to Summer Intime for the four plays, children's entertainment, and movie program they have sponsored this summer. The community is richer for the initiative, variety and high quality that have marked S.I. in 1973.

WANT TO BE JUROR?

Audience Participation. Jury duty without the duty is available to 12 volunteers from the audience at Street Theatre's performances of "The Night of January 16," due outdoors here and there this weekend.

At each of the four performances a jury will be drawn from audience volunteers and at the end of the play, the jury will briefly retire and then come forward with a verdict. The outcome of the play depends on what the audience jury decides.

Curtain time at all performances is 8 p.m. and if you want to be on the jury, you are asked to show up early.

"The Night of January 16" will open this Thursday on the lawn in front of Princeton High School. Friday, the actors will move to Van Nest Park in West Windsor. Saturday, they return to Princeton for a performance at Riverside School and this Sunday, as part of the "Summer in the Square" program, they will perform in Palmer Square.

Adrienne Lavine plays the young woman on trial for murder. Attorneys are portrayed by John Wible and Lewis Johnson. Others in the cast are Ellen Moss, Daniel Shiffman, Anne Hazen, Bob Ayling, Pat Keenan, Peter Rand, Deborah Bellow, Eric Hollander, Jon Negus, Gail Gilvarg, Rip Pellaton, Cordelia Grimm, Peter Lopatin and Anne Chooljian.

Rip Pellaton is directing. His technical staff consists of Jack Rome (set design); Chris Negus (construction); Katie Grimm (lighting); Mathhew Cahn (sound) and Deborah Bellow (costumes).

Want to Help?

Summer Intime is happy about its season, and Peter Breger, who's been running the show, says Murray Theatre has been playing to 80 percent of capacity.

But S.I. needs money and contributors. Operating costs, especially for lumber and paper, jumped 100 percent from last summer, Mr. Breger says, and he realistically expects them to rise throughout the year in preparation for next summer's season.

Donations to Summer Intime are tax-deductible. Checks may be made out to Summer Intime, and mailed to Murray Theatre, Princeton University.

'The Alchemist'.... Where Is Drive and Energy?

John Barrymore once rated "opening night along with earthquakes, tidal waves, marriages and other natural disasters beyond Man's control — fascinating to observe if you're not involved." However, a reviewer must be involved, certainly more so than other observers. For that reason this reviewer prefers to attend second performances rather than opening nights. But a busy weekend schedule made it necessary for me to attend the opening night of Princeton Theatre Company's "The Alchemist" at Rider College, and it was disappointing.

Briefly described, the plot of this comedy by Ben Jonson concerns Subtle, pretending to be an alchemist, taking advantage of the greedy ambitions of a number of Londoners, with the invaluable aiding and abedding of Face, a wily Jonsonian servant, and Dol Common, a prostitute. The action deals with the manner in which the victims are gulled until the arrival of a deus ex machina, Lovewit, who drives out Subtle and Dol.

Lovewit is the owner of the house in which the threesome ply their swindling trade. Face is forgiven by Lovewit, his former master, and the victims each realize that it was their own greed which caused them to be taken in.

"The Alchemist" is, in fact, exemplary to students of English literature for its rapidity of action and perfection of plot.

DUO OF DUPES: "The Alchemist" gulls a lot of gulls in the course of his brief career and here are a couple of them from Princetan Theatre Company's production af Ben Jonson's bawdy romp. They are Marcia Ellion, playing Dame Pliant, and Ron Orbach, acting the part of Kastril.

The Princeton Theatre Company production does little tampering with the plot, but on Thursday night the action was very, very slow.

A glance at my watch at the final curtain assured me that the show ran under two hours in length, but it seemed much longer than that. Where was the energy? Where was the focus of these talented young actors? I have seen most of the cast on stage many times, and I know what they can do, and "The Alchemist" should be within their repertory.

Granted, the evening was marred by dropping lines and dropping scenery, but the worst of it was the dropped energy level. The four women in the show did bring the action to a happier pace when they were on stage, but even the usually ebullient Alice White, as Dol Common, was not quite up to performance level.

The production is privileged to have been directed by Larry Strichman, one of the best young directors to work in the Princeton area in the last several years. Hopefully by the time this review appears in print, Mr. Strichman and company will have picked things up, and audiences should then be in for a genuinely entertaining evening.

Gretchen Bullock's costumes are pleasing, and the set, by Lowell Achziger, is beautiful. Happily, the director uses it well.

But what in the world is that offensive decapitated human head doing dead-center stage during the entire show? It has nothing whatever to do with the play, or with alchemy for that matter, and the characters in the play ignore it as though there were one in every 17th century house, rather the way one would not react to a philodendron on a coffee table in a living room of today.

In keeping with the bawdiness of the dialogue and the action, there is much groping on stage, but rather inhibited. This becomes self-consciously embarrassing only because it doesn't quite work. As one member of the audience asked, "Why do they keep plunking at each other's genitals?" In other words, my fellow actors, if you're gonna do it, do it! Otherwise leave it alone.

Two-week summer stock is a difficult venture and at best very tiring indeed. The Princeton Theatre Company showed this on opening night. I hope this situation has been remedied and that future audiences will give them the applause they very much deserve to deserve.

HE SLEPT HERE

G. Washington. Or so the real-estate agent claims, in the Kaufman and Hart comedy, "George Washington Slept Here," final production of the summer for the Princeton Summer Repertorie Theatre Theatre Company.

It will be given this Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. in the bandroom of Princeton High School. Admission is $1.

Lawrence A. Mansier, the director, says this is "a family play about the nice people in our society. Goodness is ultimately triumphant, the bad guys being done in by their own arrogance and greed."

Assisting Mr. Mansier as technical crew, are Robert Little, who designed the scenery; Steven Kolmes, who supervised construction; Kevin Colman, stage-manager; Corrine Colman, props; Liz Fischer, designing and printing of posters and Barbara Bayern, Walter Broner, K. G. Hawthorne, Chris Negus, Jon Nebus and Tanya Saxon, set builders. Most of the actors helped, too.

AMERICA: 1620-1800

In Song and Drama. "The Way it Was: America 1620-1800" will be presented this weekend at the Washington Crossing State Park Open Air Theatre, sponsored jointly by the Washington Crossing Association of New Jersey, and the Mercer County Heritage Commission.

The production will open this Thursday, and will be given again Friday and Saturday, all at 8:30 p.m. Tickets will be on sale at the gate.

TO THE FORUM

With Company Unlimited. Company Unlimited will present the musical comedy "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum" August 30, 31, September 1, 2, 3 at the Open Air Theatre at Washington Crossing State Park

Allan Salkin, who has appeared in numerous Princeton Community Players productions such as "Ring Round the Moon," "Belle the Typewriter Girl," and "Black Comedy," portrays the slave Pseudolus, the role created on Broadway by Zero Mostel

Hysterium, slave-in-chief, is played by George Kolitsas, well known to area theatre goers for his performances in such past park productions as "Kismet," "South Pacific," and "Man of La Mancha." The young master Hero is played by Brian Watkinson. Sharon Griffiths, a Bucks County dance instructor, plays the maiden Philia.

The role of Senex features Wayne R. Carter with Geri Tallone appearing as his wife Domina Cast as Marcus Lycus, the buyer and seller of beautiful girls, is William Agress, with John Horvath of Rider College as the warrior Miles Gloriosus and Chip Gentles as Erronius.

Proteans Terence Faherty, Stephen Metelits and Don Williams are joined by dancers Rosemarie Arcieri, Liz Marie Casole, Michael Hill, Johnnie Hill, Judy Hoyt and Karen Kahn

"Forum" is produced and directed by Ina R. Wilner, who has directed park productions of "Sweet Charity" for the Washington Crossing Association and "Kismet" for the Pennington Players as well as "Plaza Suite" and "The Mousetrap." Musical direction is by Herb Hunsberger who has also musically directed "Kismet," "Sweet Charity," "South Pacific."

Original choreography is by Chip Gentles who choreographed The Olde Towne Players production of "Man of La Moncha" in park performances during the 1970 and 1971 seasons.

Set design and construction is by Thom Roberts, scenic designer for the New Jersey Public Broadcasting Authority. Others on the staff include costume designer, Diana Lunghi; assistant to the director, Joy Metelits; accompanist, Jean Koenig; property chairman, Janet Wilson; and stage manager, Gary Garofano.

Performances are at 8:30 p.m. Thursday thru Monday. Tickets are $2 and are available at the box office before each show.

PERFORMERS ARE LISTED

For Westminster Series. With careful planning one might in a lifetime attend performances of all 32 Beethoven piano sonatas, but performers seldom program more than one per recital, and it, more often than not, is taken from the core of 12 to 15 sonatas which are best known

Westminster Choir College, as part of its 1973-74 President's Series, has scheduled seven recitals by Artist-in-Residence Rita Bouboulidi, and in the course of this series she will perform the 19th century master's complete cycle of sonatas

"I do this because, frankly, I like the strain," she said about learning the 900 pages of text which comprise the sonatas. "It is a good discipline for me, and it's interesting because it is such a big project that it calls out a bigger effort."

These recitals by the Greek born artist, who is presently recording the works for Radio Athens, will be held in the Westminster Playhouse on selected Monday and Thursday evenings from September 24 through December 17.

The second event on the President's Series, a recital by Marie-Claire Alain, will be held in the chapel at Lawrenceville School on November 14. Miss Alain has won an impressive number of Grand Prix du Disque for her recordings.

Other performers scheduled are: Harpsichordist Frances Cole, December 16; tenor Gerald English, February 5; Pianist David Burge, March 9; Concord String Quartet, April 16; and opera coach Boris Goldovsky, May 14.

Want some advice about packing for a trip? Only take what you can carry in your own two hands. Make sure your suitcases are light enough so that you can manage them yourself. Otherwise, you will always be looking about for help, which is hard to find, and may be expensive. Customs is much more difficult if your luggage is many and varied as is sightseeing, unpacking, packing, shopping. Limit yourself to a few essentials and you will be much better off.

For additional information on helpful hints when traveling abroad, come to WELCOME ABOARD TRAVEL CENTER 29 Witherspoon Street. Visit Europe. Make this your year to go keep step with Royal Guards, thrill at Roman antiquities, bask on a bikini beach and frolic with new found friends. Call 921-3350. Open daily 9-5:30 Saturday 10-2.

News Of The Theatres

cast, well developed and has his usual meticulous eye for riveting detail.

As readers of the best seller know, Jackal is the code name given a professional hired to kill French President Charles DeGaulle. History tells us DeGaulle did not die from an assassin's bullet, so the only question that really occupies the book and the film is how will he be stopped.

The acting and attention to detail as the Jackal tries to outwit entire French officialdom (they know he is in the country, they know his goal, but all they know is his code name) is masterfully done. Edward Fox, a beaky, pale Englishman is first rate as the Jackal. A scene in which he tests his specially made rifle on a melon — and we see how deadly he and his gun are — is well done.

But in the end, "Jackal" is a good suspense thriller that has everything but the one thing it should have: suspense. (PG)

GARDEN

A Touch of Class (now playing) is the kind of quiet little film, that must make its own way without a lot of advance buildup and ballyhoo, and consequently may be overlooked.

GEORGE SEGAL: Starring with Glenda Jackson in "A Touch of Class," at the Garden for a second week, is George Segal, cast as a bumbling lover, who can't get his love life in order.

No best-selling book to pave the way, nor big name stars or X-rating, this lively romantic comedy has much to commend it. Glenda Jackson and George Segal are cast as a couple of wayward souls involved in trying to set up an affair.

Several accidental meetings finally lead to a carefully planned rendezvous in an apartment, where Segal suggests a more permanent affair. Miss Jackson agrees and that's where the real complications begin.

Both Segal and Miss Jackson give fine performances. Her quiet stares and barbs-from-repose find a fine complement in the full-grin slightly nutty good humor of Segal. He does overplay just a bit, but he makes his somewhat klunky insurance executive one of the world's more attractive fools. And a definite plus for the film is some beautiful witty dialogue.

If you caught "Day of the Jackal" last weekend, "A Touch of Class," should prove an interesting diversion on a hot summer's night.

Montgomery and Brunswick

Forty Carats (now playing) is definitely not one of those "if you liked the play, you'll love the movie."

This disappointing film version of the Broadway play, falls somewhere between farce and human comedy and thus falls rather resoundingly, as it attempts to deal with an affair between a 40-year old woman who is well into spinsterhood or motherhood and her 20-year old lover who is not quite int omaturity.

Complicating matters are several other side events. The woman's daughter is having an affair with the mother's current and middle-aged boy friend; her ex-husband will settle for just about any age in the opposite sex, and the boy's mother has a 20-year old lover of her own. By the way, it may sound X-rated, hut this film has managed to corral a PG rating.

The play was able to hand all this in a fairly witty and lighthanded manner, but it bogs down in transition to the screen with some heavy discussions of the problems that is neither funny enough for comedy or strong enough for drama.

All of this puts a pretty hard burden on the actors, a burden that is somewhat intensified by the casting of Liv Ullmann in what amounts to her first really lengthy English language role. Miss Ullmann's accent and lack of comic delivery and pacing very uneven. As her lover, Edward Albert, has a better time with the script.

PRINCE

Jesus Christ Superstar. A hip, contemporary rock opera that brings the reverent, Biblical Jesus Christ down from the stained glass windows.

Fundamentalists may be jarred at seeing crowds wearing long hair, blue jeans and T shirts, but the film has been embraced by the young people as one that speaks in their idiom. The rock opera itself is a mixture of musical styles, pop culture and religion.

Tom Neeley, who had played Jesus in Broadway and Los Angeles stage productions, stars in the title role. Carl Anderson is Judas; Yvonne Elliman, Mary Magdalene; and Barry Dennen, Pontius Pilate.

'I Remember....' Bygone Days in Borough Hall

LEAVING THE SCENE: Thomson Hall in process of demolition.

"I remember . . ."

Like a decaying ante-bellum mansion, even to the wisteria wild and rampant over the peeling walls, Thomson Hall, the former Borough Hall, stood unoccupied and vulnerable for six years, seedy and out of place in Princeton's affluent western section.

Now, it's being razed and like other mansions in other days, it evokes "I remember . . ."

"We used to let Brown University students keep their bear over night before the Brown game in that old jail," grins Robert F. Mooney, Borough Administrator. "What a stink! Had to stop it after a while — it was just too awful."

"That old jail," he shakes his head, "the state condemned it every time they made an inspection. Terrible condition, bad location, probably a fire-hazard . . ."

"We used to let drifters and gandy-dancers sleep there overnight. I guess you could say people broke into that jail and broke out of it, too, because we had some escapes. And sometimes prisoners would flood the cell or try to start a fire."

Two "Holdovers." Mr. Mooney has been working for the Borough since 1946, when he was hired by Minot C. Morgan, Jr., the mayor of that time, to be assistant clerk to Edgar Warren. Only Mr. Mooney and Jean Taube, a draftsman in the engineering department, are left from that era. Mr. Warren died many years ago and Mr. Mooney succeeded him. Thomson Hall was the seat of Borough government from 1936 until 1967 when the present Borough Hall was completed. Before 1936, the town was administered from the square building that stands behind the Thomson Hall site, facing Mercer Street.

Nobody now on the police force was there in 1936. The present police chief, Michael Carnevale, was a patrolman in the days of old Borough Hall and in a mood of nostalgia for the cramped old police headquarters, he had hoped to acquire one of the odl jail doors, but some unknown nostalgia-hunter beat him to it. Mr. Mooney's souvenir is a brick from the fireplace that stood in his Administrator's office.

But Thomson Hall suffered souvenir hunters of less innocence in the six years it stood empty. Two handsome marble fireplaces simply vanished. How anyone steals a marble fireplace, much less a pair of them, can only be imagined.

Vandals smashed windows and built-in fixtures like counters, but apparently did not touch some woodwork and nice fan lights, which have carefully been taken away by the Princeton Historical Society.

Sieve-Like Roof. "Every room in that building leaked," Mr. Mooney recalls. Borough residents who attended Council meetings less than a decade ago will remember buckets strategically placed in the Council chamber to catch water during a rainstorm."

They may remember, too, the vines that grew into the Council room through the space between wall and window. "Vines — they even grew through the bricks!" is Mr. Mooney's recollection.

"I have memories of babying that oil burner and babying the hot water heater, and of course there was no such thing as air-conditioning," and Mr. Mooney glances out his cool modern office at the playing fountains that provide air-conditioning for the present Borough Hall.

The engineering department was on the third floor, and summer days up there were memorable. No elevator, of course, and Mr. Mooney remembers carrying people out on stretchers after they had collapsed from the steep climb or had fallen on the stairs.

Later, the now-gone Junior Museum occupied the third floor, but its young enthusiasts raced up and down the stairs without a coronary thought.

Ooce a Social Outcast. Before the days of Borough Hall, Thomson Hall had been a social center. Cotillions, debutante balls and dances were held there, refreshed from a kitchen in the basement.

The Borough leased the building at $500 a year from the trustees of the estate of Josephine Ward Thomson Swann. In the mid-1960's, Princeton Theological Seminary bought the Miss Fine's School building where Borough Hall now is, then traded properties with Swann estate trustees, thereby acquiring Thomson Hall on a site next to property already owned by the Seminary. The trade gave the Borough the land on which to build its new municipal building.

When the Borough took over Thomson Hall in 1936, the mayor was Carl Erdman, who served in that office for 12 years. He was succeeded by Mr. Morgan, the late P. Mackay Sturges, Raymond F. Male, Henry S. Patterson and the present mayor, Robert W. Cawley. The new Borough Hall was finished while Mr. Patterson was mayor and he served in both old and new buildings. In 1936, the chief of police was Edward W. Mahan. He was followed by John H. Smith, Raymond F. Mondone, Peter J. McCrohan and the present chief, Mr. Carnevale. Mr. McCrohan is the chief who moved from the old police headquarters to the new.

Thomson Hall, which saw them come and saw them go, is now itself part of the past.

STUART STAFF ALTERED

Opening September 12, Stuart Country Day School of the Sacred Heart begins its 11th year with a new headmistress, several new administrators, some innovations in the curriculum, and fewer boys.

Classes in all grades begin Wednesday, September 12.

An open house for all students and their parents will be held Sunday, September 9, from 3 to 5 p.m.

The new headmistress is Sister Judith Garson, formerly assistant headmistress in charge of curriculum at Stuart.

In other administrative changes Miss Elaine Schuster a Chicagoan, was named curriculum coordinator.

New Business Manager. Mrs. Kenneth Keuffel was appointed to the position of Director of Admissions and Development. Mrs. Robert Christie, formerly an assistant in the public relations and development offices, became Director of Public Relations.

Formerly on the staff of the Princeton - Pennsylvania Accelerator, which has ceased operations, William A. Townsend has been appointed business manager of the school.

Enrollment this fall is expected to drop slightly to about 330 students, with much of the decrease due to the discontinuation of the K-2 program for boys. About 20 boys last year were enrolled at that level.

Stuart now has boys only in its pre-school program.

Student Teachers. Among the new courses being offered at Stuart, two will be electives taught by seniors at the school. Leslie Pizer, who has taken several college level photography courses, will teach a one or two - term course in photography and run the student photography club.

Lisa Burns has been active in community theater activities and she will teach a one-year course in theater and drama.

Another new course will be on world religions, and will be taught for all three trimesters by Sister Barbara Carey.

About 15 percent of the students at Stuart Country Day currently receive some financial assistance. Scholarship funds make up eight percent of the school's operating budget.

Teachers were given extra time to pack, box and label their cherished classroom necessities. Mr. Heyman, thumbing his four-inch thick notebook file, shows the color coding that made certain moves were made accurately for each teacher.

Equipment not labeled has gone into a "hold" and teachers are being asked to check the "holds" in Valley Road before the start of school.

"We'll get a crunch in September when school starts, but this system will ease it" Mr. Heyman says confidently.

Actual, physical moving this summer, was done by two crews. One consisted of Mr. Karch's regulars. The other was composed of eight teachers ("We figured we'd hire people who had a personal interest in getting the right things moved right!" Mr. Heyman grins.) plus 15 teen-agers.

At the "building" level, the move was co-ordinated by Philip Cobb, assistant principal of the middle school, but most of the work within buildings was supervised by principals themselves. "They're the ones who have to live with what's done," is Mr. Heyman's comment.

Principal Participant. Perhaps the key principal in the move is Miss Euell, in a new job in a new building. Not, however, new to the middle school. She began teaching science the first year the middle school was in operation, moved to administration two years later, and now, starting her sixth year in Princeton's system is principal of the middle school.

"I think it's going to be good for student and teacher morale for all of us to be housed in one building," Miss Euell says.

"And I see our closeness to the high school as not a problem, but an advantage. We plan to capitalize on high school upperclassmen with time and energy on their hands — use them as classroom aides. We made a start along these lines before, but the old middle school was just too far from the high school. Now, we'd like to expand that program."

"Also, our eighth - graders who excel in math or foreign languages, may be able to cross the street and take some work at the high school."

House Is Home. No innovations this year in the middle school — the move itself is quite enough! The school will continue to be organized in "houses" — 12 of them.

"Most of the staff likes the house plan," Miss Euell explains, "and this year, we have smaller houses so teachers will have an even greater sense of working together and knowing the kids. When we had 125 kids in a house — it was too large."

A house has, at the sixth - grade level, a maximum of 50 students and two teachers, usually one for math.-science and one for English - social studies. Students have only those two classroom teachers.

Multi age houses, for 6-7-8 grades, or for 7-8 grades, have a similar pattern of two or three teachers and a cluster of students who "live" in that house.

"There are so many advantages to a house system," Miss Euell believes. "Teachers have common planning and discussion time, they can have parent conferences during the day, when everyone is free, they come to know their students on a personal and human level."

The system has its problems, and Miss Euell is acutely aware of what they are. Parents, in the spring, will ask to have a child placed in a certain house. These requests can't always be honored and sometimes there is a waiting list for a particular house with particular teachers.

"We'll let school start and deal with individual problems making adjustments as we can," the principal says, "but we're going to do it differently next year."

And she smiles quietly again. "I think it's going to be a good year."

HUN ENROLLMENT UP

Lower School Opened. The Hun School of Princeton reports a record enrollment of 380 students, the opening of a new Lower School, initiation of two foundation supported academic programs, and plans to refurbish dormitories and construct a new Student Center, as it begins its 60th academic year on September 10.

Some 350 boys and girls will attend the Upper School in grades 9-12. More than 100 boys will be boarding at Hun, and the coeducational day program will include 85 girls and 165 boys.

The new Lower School is being limited to 30 boys and girls with one class of 10 in the seventh grade, and two eighth grade classes, pending the availability of additional classroom space.

Increased overall enrollment, according to Dr. Paul R. Chesebro, Headmaster, is attributable to a growing interest on the part of parents and students in a traditional, structured style of education. "We find more students seeking an orderly campus environment which fosters their own efforts toward self-discipline and maturity," Dr. Chesebro said.

Professors from Princeton University, Rutgers and Rider College will conduct weekly seminars for Hun students in one of the new academic programs. Supported by The Edward Ford Foundation, the project is intended to introduce upperclassmen to university - level seminar methods and analysis.

American Culture. Another new program will provide foreign students preparing for American colleges with an orientation to American culture and special instruction in English as a foreign language. Supported by the C. V. Starr Foundation, the program is designed to set a standard of training for foreign students attending American preparatory schools.

Construction of the new Student Center, which will include additional Lower School classrooms, expanded art and music facilities, and student activities areas, is expected to begin during the school year and be completed in 1974.

Dormitories will also be modernized and special provisions made for the arrival of Hun's first girl boarding students in September, 1974.

Kitchen expansion and modernization will be completed prior to registration on September 8 and 9, and the opening of classes on Monday, September 10.

FOUR DIE, ONE SURVIVES

In Hopewell Township Crash. A 12-year-old girl is the lone survivor of a violent two-car crash during a blinding rainstorm last Wednesday evening, that took the lives of four other persons including her parents.

Diane Krajewski of Jamison, Pa. is reported to be in satisfactory condition at Mercer Hospital. Killed in the crash were her father, Edward R. Krajewski, 46; mother, Gloria, 44; their 10-year-old niece, Kathy Warshefski of Somerville, and the driver of the other car, Eugene Maybury, 42, of Review Avenue, Lawrenceville.

According to state police, the Krajewskis weer taking their niece home to Somerville, when their car skidded out of control on Route 546 near the Hopewell Township municipal building. It was rammed broadside by Maybury's car, police said. Mr. Maybury was reportedly on his way to work at the Bucks County Playhouse, where he was employed as a parking lot security officer.

Mr. Maybury was taken to Mercer Hospital in critical condition after the 7:30 p.m. accident, and died about five hours later from internal injuries, a hospital spokesman said.

Titusville and Pennington First Aid Squad workers dispatched to the scene found all five victims trapped in the wreckage of the two vehicles. Diane Krajewski was pinned under her family's car for 20 minutes before rescue workers were able to free her.

The heavy rain blurred skid marks and complicated police efforts to pinpoint the exact cause of the crash.

EX-RESIDENT NABBED

On Drug Charge. A 17-year-old youth from Maryland, a former Princeton resident visiting friends here, was arrested Monday night at 11:30 by Ptl. Mario Musso.

He was later charged with possession of under 25 grams of marijuana and less than five grams of hashish. He was then released to the custody of his friends, pending further action by a juvenile court.

Ptl. Musso had responded to a call reporting a suspicious car driving up and down Lovers Lane. During his routine check of the car, he said he smelled marijuana and placed the juvenile driver under arrest.

Charged with Shoplifting. Two Borough girls, age 12 and 13, were charged with shoplifting last week after they allegedly took eye make-up kits valued at $3.68 from Kresge's in the Princeton Shopping Center.

Following processing by Township Juvenile Officer Anthony Pinelli, the two were released to their parents. Det. Pinelli said that the store manager had observed the girls take the kits.

THE WALLS COME TUMBLING DOWN: It was just a decade ago that picturesque Lower Pyne felt the tremors of change, and departed the Nassau Street scene to make way for the five-story building that is now 1 Palmer Square.

Going Back in Princeton

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

August 19, 1948. Inflation was a frustrating factor in the lives of Princetonians a quarter-century ago, and while it is small consolation in these troubled times, the leap frogging food costs in the post war era were fully as bad, percentage-wise, as they are today.

"As far as the housewife was concerned," TOWN TOPICS reported, "the victrola needle was in the same old groove. The story of mounting food costs it told was as worrisome as it was monotonous: prices were up 1.4 percent over last month, 13 percent over June of '47 and 133 percent over the summer of 1939. The greenback of that year would buy 43 cents worth of food today."

In August, 1948, TOWN TOPICS' "Man of the Week" was Joseph Stansalus Half, three-time mayor of the Borough who was still active in many ways as he began his 81st year. "Born here the same year the United States purchased Alaska from Russia," TOWN TOPICS wrote, "this energetic octogenarian, with his deep-rooted interest in things political, grew with his community and successively as accountant, retail merchant, bank organizer and officer, real estate broker and practitioner of the art of politics – contributed substantially to its growth."

Entertainment in the summer of '48 was marked by the week-long stand in McCarter Theatre of Bert Lahr, featured in "Burlesque." At the Playhouse, one musical was following another: Charles Winninger in "Give My Regards to Broadway" and then Jane Powell with (of all people in a musical) Wallace Beery heading the cast of "A Date with Judy."

One of the first post-war pictures, originally released in 1946, was back for a re run. At the Garden, Frederic March and Myrna Loy held forth in "The Best Years of Our Lives."

Princeton football was about to start its fourth season under Charlie Caldwell. Heading for the Princeton campus was a young man from Maumee, Ohio, but it would be another 12 months before tailback Dick Kazmaier would arrive on the varsity scene.

Meanwhile, Caldwell was in need of replacements at two key positions, center and quarterback. One gap had been left by Frank Perantoni, who had earned a place in the line with the New York Football Yankees in the old American League, and another by Dick West. That fall, a sophomore by the name of George Chandler won the quarterback assignment, and held it for all 27 games of his career.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

August 20, 1953. Parking meters were on the horizon. After a variety of jousting between various factions, petitions which requested a referendum on the need for parking meters were certified as valid by Borough Clerk Robert F. Mooney and Attorney Edgar S. Smith. The voters would accordingly make the decision in November.

In nearby Montgomery Township, a battle raged over the governing body's belief that heavy industry should be admitted in the form of quarrying operations by Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing. When Township Committee looked favorably on the application for the necessary zoning variance, several hundred residents formed the Montgomery Community League in opposition to "city hall" and 3 M.

A last-ditch step by the League forced a referendum seeking a change in the municipality's form of government; if approved, the move would unseat the existing committee. On a quiet August evening, a full 80 percent of the electorate went to the polls, upholdeing the Township Committee's status by a margin on 526 to 372.

New Jersey's Turnpike, one of the early toll roads to liberate motorists from the stop-and-go driving imposed by traffic lights, was a dream come true to one motorist who traveled it for the first time. On paying a $105 fine for being clocked at 105 miles an hour, he told the judge "it was so beautiful, I just couldn't resist it."

Princeton's only paraplegic veteran, 31-year-old George F. Durner, Jr. took part in ceremonies which cancelled an $8,000 mortgage on the home built for him at 26 Stanley Avenue. Veterans Administration Funds obtained by Princeton Savings and Loan made the occasion possible. Mrs. Charlotte W. Dougherty, the association's executive secretary, presenting Mr. Durner with a clear title to his home. He was paralyzed from the waist down after serving as a paratrooper in the invasion of Europe and being captured by the Nazis in the summer of 1944.

TEN YEARS AGO

August 22, 1963. School population was increasing steadily in the early years of the last decade. Figures showed that the pupil count in Township schools had increased from 1,800 in 1961 to 2,150 two years later, and in Princeton High from just under 1,500 to nearly 1,700.

Recently - built Township schools (Riverside and Little brook) were already being enlarged. In the Borough, a new school complex was on the drawing boards for Walnut Lane, but as yet no one had a name for it.

Princetonians were planning participation in the civil rights demonstration that would take the form of a March on Washington. With a week to go, some 200 had already indicated the need for five buses which would depart from the Shopping Center on August 28 at 6 a.m.

Impressed by the response from the community, Henry Drewry, one of the organizers here, commented, "Maybe I shouldn't have underestimated the good will of Princeton. This means something that I have hoped for all along," he added, "that a sizeable number of people in Princeton are seriously concerned to the point of being willing to take some direct action."

Seeking to stir up a bit of action on a quiet summer night, the shuttle train that, when properly guided, runs only between Princeton Junction & Back, took off by itself around 11 p.m. and made it all the way to the Walker-Gordon Dairies near Plainsboro before it slowed to a stop.

Ever anxious for a helping of off beat copy, newspapers made much of the ghost train shutting along by itself. The New York Times even accompanied its 900 word report with an inset map, which pinpointed Princeton Junction as "Berrien City" (the nickname Junction residents often use for their abode) and somehow located Walker - Gordon as west not east of the Junction.

Apprehension Over 'Progress'

To the Editor of Town Topics:

A letter to the Editor in mid August is, I recognize, shooting an arrow into the air. The odds on the arrow's evoking any response is minimal.

Nevertheless, I am seeking an understanding of some recent improvements in our community. One is the closing of the postal sub-sttion at the shopping center and the news that there won't be another for at least two years. Another is the removal of the two snorkel letter boxes from the recently reopened north-bound vehicle entrance to Palmer Square.

The third is the new prohibition against a left turn at the north end of the small plot containing the bronze tiger. Do traffic accident records over the years prove this point to be a fender-bender?

I've passed through that area, on foot or on wheels, on an average of once a day since Palmer Square was built, and I've not even witnessed a close call there, despite the eccentric driving that seems to be a continuing characteristic of our community.

Putting these three improvements together, one is led to ask who's in charge of the improvement department. What new hurdles is he/she planning for us? May we have time to adjust to these before the next obstacles to convenience are installed?

Obviously I don't expect answers. I merely felt impelled to express my wonder at these signs of progress and my apprehension over unknown improvements even now on some secret drawing-board.

Tribute to Eugene Maybury

To the Editor of Town Topics:

You may not have realized that Eugene Maybury, who was one of the four persons killed Wednesday, August 15 in a car crash in Hopewell Township (see story in "Topics of the Town), was well-known to many little children in Princeton.

Simply called "Gene," he was the beloved school crossing guard for kindergartners at Franklin and Moore streets.

Oftentimes, I worried because my daughter Alison was delayed slightly in returning. Then, I would find her at the corner, talking to Gene, and showing him her latest drawing or little treasure. He always had a kind word for everyone.

Again, at the Princeton Public Library, where he was custodian, he would always recognize his little charges and greet them happily. For some children, he was their first adult friend outside the family and school.

We shall miss him dearly.

Pool Safety Debated.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

In response to Ms Dorothea Hommel's letter on pool safety, (Town Topics August 9, 1973) we would like to point out that the advice given is useless for various reasons, two of which are:

1 If the victim is under more than two feet of water his lungs would be unable to work against the increased pressure of the water.

2 The air exhaled by the victim, mostly carbon dioxide, would accumulate at the bottom of the tube, being heavier than oxygen. Therefore the victim would be unable to get sufficient oxygen.

In conclusion we would not recommend using this method of protection as a safety device.

PLANNING FOR MORE MEALS ON WHEELS: Elderly people in the Hightstown-East Windsor area will now be able to obtain meals on wheels through the cooperation of several organizations. Those who helped to plan the program's expansion are: (seated from left) Eleanor Raymond and Louise Chioppone, East Windsor Woman's Club; and Libbie Johnson, Meals on Wheels committee. (Standing) Evelyn Cohen, Mercer County Committee, Action; Ruth Powers, E. W. Woman's Club; Ann Honore, Red Cross; Joe Danchak, RCA Astro; Beena Freeman, and Ellen Tricomi, E. W. Woman's Club and Janet Aylward, Princeton Medical Center.

Topics Of The Town

PROGRAM EXPANDED

For Meals on Wheels. Princeton Chapter American Red Cross, the Medical Center at Princeton, RCA, and the East Windsor Woman's Club have recently joined in cooperation to bring the benefits of more Meals on Wheels to people in the Hightstown, East Windsor area.

These communities will now be served with meals prepared in the cafeteria of RCA Astro. RCA is also purchasing and donating the special thermal trays required for the program.

The Dietary Department of the Medical Center at Princeton has offered to supervise the preparation of any special diets if they are needed.

In preparation for delivering from the satellite meal source of the Princeton area Meals on Wheels, volunteers from the East Windsor Woman's Club have attended a training session run by Libbie Johnson of the Meals on Wheels Committee. Janet Aylward of the Department of Community Health of the Medical Center at Princeton, Joe Danchak of RCA Astro, and Ann Honore of Princeton Red Cross.

Meals on Wheels, launched in March 1972, has brought 4,065 hot luncheons and cold suppers to 82 shut-ins and convalescents in the Princeton United Fund-Red Cross Area.

These meals are prepared and packed in thermal trays at Princeton House under the professional supervision of the Medical Center at Princeton and delivered by volunteers at noon on Monday through Friday to those who are unable to shop for food and cook their own meals. Some clients have been with the program since its inception while others have only a temporary need.

The meals packed in Princeton House are carried to residents of Lawrence Township, Montgomery Township, Rocky Hill, Kingston and West Windsor, as well as Princeton Borough and Township. They are still hot when they arrive at their destination.

This matter of retained heat proved difficult when food was carried as far as the East Windsor area from Princeton House, and so the auxiliary meal source came into being, since the Princeton Area Red Cross also serves East Windsor, Hightstown, Cranbury, Twin Rivers and Plainsboro.

The members of the East Windsor Woman's Club who already form the nucleus of the volunteers for this area and are happy for the shorter drive to RCA Astro cafeteria plan to recruit volunteers from other clubs and organizations.

One client in Hightstown is already being served and the Princeton Red Cross is awaiting phone calls at 924-2404 and the opportunity to help those who could benefit from the program.

Woolworth's Has Supplies

Back to school means more than a new dress or polish'd shoes. There are lunches to be packed, notes to be taken and pencils to be bought and F. W. Woolworth Co. 116 Nassau Street is stocked with all these items.

We saw lunch boxes that say "Go to School with Snoopy," and ones that feature the Road Runner or Harlem Globetrotters, approximately $3 each.

A special blue canvas looseleaf binder comes with a clip, filler paper and a plastic tab index, $1.47, while other binder have beautiful photographic scene on the cover to hopefully brighten some cool moment. These scenes include animals, surfers, skiers and even a bicyclist at sunset, 79 cents.

Woolworth's also has pens, briefcases and pencils, and best of all a miniature football helmet sharpener representing your favorite team, 29 cents.

IT'S NEW To Us

NEED SCHOOL CLOTHES? These Stores Have Them. With schools beginning to reopen in just two weeks, many mothers are searching for a sportscoat (some schools still require them), a pantsuit for the new college year, or a dress or slacks for the child who grew three inches over the summer. The summer sales are almost over, and throughout town we found the stores ready for these mothers and children.

At Ladybug, The IHS high waisted, cuffed pants are at Ladybug, 16 Nassau Street, in plaids, solids and corduroys, and they are all under $18. A green corduroy pair, completely washable, in a jeans style, costs $14, and to go with it we saw a pale green long sleeved blouse, $13, and a sleeveless cabled vest, $14.

The store has a large selection of jeans by Wrangler, IHS and Levi in a variety of styles, some with high waists and cuffs. This group even includes the original Levi jeans which are so tough that all the seams are guaranteed for a year, $10.

Ladybug has several groupings of sweaters, pants, skirts and jackets in co-ordinated colors so you can put together your own look. One of our favorites comes in a beautiful dusty rose with a matching plaid. The cuffed plaid pants are $22 and the flared skirt, $15. Then there is a battle jacket, vest, turtle neck sweater or a cabled sweater-jacket to top it all off.

Penryn Tracy, Ladybug's Manager, told us that because clothes are so expensive, she likes to do a couple of things with one item. To demonstrate this, she took a handsome burgundy double knit wool dress (see picture), $42, which is great alone or with a scarf. Then she put a blouse with a green pattern underneath, $13, and finally added a white vest with green trim, $12, for a third look.

In addition to the usual shopping hours, Ladybug is open Monday to Friday evenings until 9.

At Emphasis, Down at 126 Nassau Street, Emphasis has a great pant coat to buy now and save for campus walks and football games. In camel with off white trim, this flared coat by John Meyer is beautifully tailored and warm as toast, $94.

While it would look great with any slacks, there is a straight leg pant in the off white, $34, and even a matching shirt jacket, $40, for a total look.

Then for a more casual look, Emily M has made a battle jacket, straight skirt, and high waisted cuffed pants, $23-$38, in a large plaid of great fall colors — rust, green and gold.

Another pantsuit and our favorite, is a green ribbless corduroy by Ellen Tracy. The shirt jacket has an elastic waist, side buckles and tiny gold buttons, $30. The matching pants are cuffed, $26, and we also saw a white blouse with a tiny burgundy print which is lovely with the green, $17.

By David Smith we admired a skirt and sweater set that seems to have all the fall fashion requirements. The grey and camel argyle - patterned skirt, $30, has a matching sweater jacket, $28, that tops a camel knit sleeveless pullover, $14. This washable acrylic knit would quickly become a favorite in any closet.

At Piccadilly, We continued walking, and at The Piccadilly, 200 Nassau Street, we found an enchanting lightweight dress for those early fall days. This deep green shirtwaist with a small orange flower print and stitched pleats in the front and back has a soft, feminine look, $48.

If skirts are one of your great loves, this is a store to check out. In an A-line style there is a lovely pale blue corduroy skirt, fully lined, $16, and in a bias-cut swirl style — most flattering — we admired a navy and white check, $22.

Blazers are again very popular among the young, and here we saw an all wool navy and red plaid one, $60, which can be matched with a swirl skirt, $22, of straight - leg, front-zip pants for a handsome suit.

FOR GIRLS: Penryn Tracy of Ladybug shows how a wool knit dress can be given another look by adding a blouse and sweater vest. This burgundy dress is also handsome worn by itself.

One of this fall's fashion notes is cables, and the Piccadilly has many cable crewneck sweaters by Dean in a range of gorgeous colors. Then as a final touch to any outfit, there is a new line of canvas purses with vinyl trim, and they are very reasonably priced. For instance, a pale brown shoulder bag with darker vinyl trim is $14.

At Allen's. Catering to the younger back-to-schoolers, and even those off for the first time, is Allen's Children's Center at 134 Nassau Street. While the popularity of pants has reached down to the kindergarten level, dresses are still worn by many children.

In sizes 7-14 we found several good-looking dresses. We loved the long-sleeved navy knit with a red flower print by Carltona, which has its own attached white turtleneck dickey, $15; and we feel any little girl would be brightened by the gay, multi-colored animal kingdom print on Love's short-sleeved dress, $11.

But, if pants are called for, Millbrook has a blue thin-wale corduroy slacks and vest set, $22. They also make a double-breasted blazer in a bold yellow, orange and blue plaid, $19, which can be matched with a kilt or slacks.

Then for the first chilly mornings, we thought the perfect answer was a red acrylic knit cape with navy fringe and an Indian-patterned yoke, $12.

In the boy's department (sizes 8-20), we found the new straight-leg cuffed pants, and especially admired a patchwork plaid pair, $9. There are curduroys, tartans and jeans also, and many are cuffed.

Two handsome tops are being featured this year. One is a ribbed sleeveless sweater vest in yellow, blue, burgundy, green or beige, $7; and the other is a long-sleeved velour shirt by Donmoor in a pretty green, blue, burgundy or camel, $7.50.

Jeans are always popular, and a corduroy or plaid pair with a matching jean-style jacket is perfect for a boy's return to school. The plaid is grey and brown, and the corduroy comes in navy, green or rust. There is even a paisley print shirt to complete the corduroy's look, and, of course, the pants are cuffed. The prices range from $6-$9, and these clothes by Billy the Kid go from size 4-20.

At Prep Shop. At the bottom of Palmer Square, at 29 Hulfish Street, The Prep Shop remains a place to find classic good-looking clothes for boys and young men. Walter Servis, the store's owner told us that he has the boot-leg pant this year and sportscoat with slightly narrower lapels than the last few years.

The store carries junior sizes 8-12, prep sizes 13 to 20, and young men's sizes of 27-36 inch waists. If Mr. Servis chooses an item for his store, it is highly likely that you will find it in all three size groups as his styles do not change with the age of the boy.

The boot-leg pant comes in great corduroy colors of olive, tomato red and wheat, $15. There are also tartan dress slacks, and jeans in brushed denim and corduroy.

Then for those schools that do require a sportscoat, there is a corduroy jacket in a range of neutral colors such as cinnamon, wheat and taupe, $30 to $50 depending upon the size.

And, in the traditional manner of the store, there are oxford button-down shirts in solids and stripes, all permanent press, $6.50-$9; and machine washable shetland sweaters in lovely colors from mint green to a deep brown, $13-$17.

With slight differences, all these stores are open Monday through Saturday for the standard working hours, and they will happily try to solve any back-to-school problems

FOR BOYS: This glen plaid sportscoat from the Prep Shop comes in charcoal with a burgundy and gold overplaid, and is representative of the classic clothes Mr. Walter Servis buys for his store.

Where to Go? Survey Evaluates Private Schools

Late August or early September may not be the best time to start thinking about enrolling children in private school. But the financial crisis affecting independent schools, coupled with the rising tuition costs and changing attitudes toward education, may make some schools welcome applicants right up to the first day of classes.

For those considering private school a year from now, this certainly is not too early to start planning.

In either case, "A Survey of Independent Schools," published this year by Mrs. Elizabeth Ranney of Pennington and Mrs. Carolyn Wilson of Princeton, may provide helpful information about 18 private schools in the greater Princeton and Delaware Valley area.

The authors scrupulously avoid making value judgements about the schools they have surveyed. Nor do they appraise the financial position of each school — an important consideration these days.

But they do provide detailed information on admission requirements, tuition, financial aid, facilities, faculties, curricula and general atmosphere of the schools. They also provide general tips on selecting an independent school.

Rule of Thumb. Mrs. Ranney and Mrs. Wilson advise that independent schools usually have active parents' organizations. "In many cases the interest of the parents is an indication of the strength of the school," they write.

"Each school has its own atmosphere and, even though the facts and figures may change from year to year, this atmosphere is relatively unchanging. You will soon begin to detect differences. Our rule of thumb is: Choose a school where you feel comfortable. Your child will usually respond the same way."

The authors have a total of six children, who have attended 11 different schools between kindergarten and high school, public and independent. "We have been doing informal research on schools for more than 18 years," they write.

Following are excerpts from the survey:

Chapin School — K-8. "Admission is selective. Applicants should have normal to superior ability."

School Life: "....Although the school has grown in the past 10 years, it still conveys a warm, supportive atmosphere to the students, in addition to providing a great deal of individualized attention...."

Columbus Boychoir School — 1-9. "The school encourages the musically able boy of above-average intelligence to apply."

School Life: "Much of the activity . . . centers around the concerts which the choirs present locally, nationally, and abroad. They have performed with Eugene Ormandy and Leonard Bernstein, both of whom serve on the school's advisory committee . . ."

The Hun School — 7-12. "Candidates who flourish in a structured, traditional milieu are encouraged to apply."

School Life: "The school feels strongly about fundamental concepts of respect, self discipline, good study habits, and neat appearance. A traditional dress code is enforced for both boys and girls. As the school has become more a day school than a boarding school parents have taken on an ever-increasing role in the life of the school."

The Lawrenceville School — 8-12. "Highly selective, particularly for day boys."

School Life: "Lawrenceville is an old, established boarding school, and in many ways still resembles the archetypal New England boarding school. It is organized around the house system, through which the boys have the closeness and small social units of a small school without forfeiting the advantages academically and athletically of a large school . . . The dress code has been relaxed. . ."

Miss Mason's School — Nursery, K-3. "Admission is by interview with Miss Mary Mason."

School Life: "The school's intention is to develop an atmosphere in which the learning process can be enjoyable. . ."

The Pennington School — 7-12. "The school is interested in enrolling 'the average student who wants to learn and who has college as his goal'."

School Life: "The approach of the school is basically traditional, both in teaching methods and dress requirements. Boys must wear shirts and ties to class and keep their hair at a prescribed length. Dress standards are also set for the girls . . ."

Princeton Day School — K-12. "Admission is on a selective basis."

School Life: "Independent study is extended to all students in the upper school at the beginning of the academic year, and they are expected to assume responsibilities for their studies, their personal behavior, and to follow the student code encompassed in the Honor system. Moderate dress rules are based on the principle of appropriateness. . ."

Stuart Country Day School of the Sacred Heart — K-12. "Selective but striving for a diversity of religious faiths, socio - economic backgrounds, and intellectual ability."

School Life: "The school is God-centered, and committed to the ideal of community service. The girls, particularly in the upper school, take an active interest in their service projects, and within the school students form a small, strongly knit community. . ."

Other schools included in the survey are Buckingham Friends School, Doane Academy, George School, Newtown Friends School, the Peddie School, Rutgers Preparatory School, Solebury, St. Mary's Hall, Trinity Cathedral Day School and Villa Victoria Academy.

Copies of the guidebook, at $2.50 each, are available from Survey Associates, Box 249D, Mount Rose Raod, Pennington, 08534, or at area bookstores.

Demonstration of Children's Car Safety Restraints Planned Saturday

LOOK AT ME IN MY CAR SEAT! Five children demonstrate car restraints to be displayed Saturday at the entrance to Community Park Pool. From left to right, Colum Chisholm in the General Motors Infant Carrier; Seth Mnookin in the General Motors Love Seat; Michael Rowlett in the new Bobby-Mac Seat; Chiara Menotti in the Sears Child Safety Harness and Kate Leone in the Ford Tat Guard.

A group of parents will set up a display of child restraints and be on hand to answer questions Saturday at the entrance to Community Park Pool. Their effort is part of a nation-wide campaign sponsored by Action for Child Transportation Safety and the Center for Auto Safety to publicize the need for special protection for young passengers in automobiles.

Each year approximately 1,000 car riders under the age of 5 lose their lives in highway accidents. This toll, and the even more startling injury count, estimated at anywhere from 250,000 to 1,000,000, could be considerably reduced by the conscientious use of restraints designed especially for children. "The drive to 'buckle-up' for safety," says Wendy Mnookin, organizer of the demonstration in Princeton, "has neglected the one group that has no choice in whether it's protected or not."

Adult lap belts are better than nothing at all, but can actually cause injury to the immature abdominal area of children under 40 pounds. Diagonal shoulder belts can cause severe neck injury to children less than 55 inches tall. Even many of the constraints are hazardous: crash tests done by Consumers Union sohwed that many restraints collapsed upon impact or failed to restrain the dummy from flying into the instrument panel.

Car restraints which will be demonstrated Saturday are thsoe which are considered safer than the more conventional seats on the market. Dealers and stores in the area which handle these devices, and which are cooperating in providing restraints for the display are Allen's Children's Center, Eldridge Pontiac-Buick, Nassau-Conover Motor Company, Prince Chevrolet and Sears, Roebuck. Those interested in learning more about how to provide a safe ride for children are invited to the display at the entrance of Community Park Pool on Saturday or, in case of rain, Sunday.

RINGOES GIRL MURDERED

Suspect Under Arrest. A 33-year-old Sergeantsville man has been charged with the murder of Deborah S. Margolin, 17, of Bowne Station Road, Ringoes.

The girl's body was discovered August 13 in a stream about a mile from her home by her father, Dr. Solomon Margolin of Affiliated Medical Research Inc., Princeton Pike and Province Line Road.

Earlier that day the girl had left her farm home to search for a stray heifer. She was wearing a bikini and had planned to go swimming after finding the animal.

Her body was found at 6:15 p.m., less than two hours after her mother reported her missing. A medical examination showed knife wounds of the neck, right breast and vaginal area. Her windpipe and jugular vein had been severed.

Suspect in the case is Frank M. Miller Jr., who was being held without bail in Hunterdon County Jail. Miller was released on parole from state prison last September, after serving three years of a 12- to 15-year term on a rape charge involving a 13-year-old Delaware Township girl.

No Comment. Stephen Rubin, assistant Hunterdon County prosecutor, declined to detail the circumstance's of Miller's arrest. He would not comment on reports that police leads were developed from automobile identification supplied by the dead girl's brothers.

Miller was employed at PF & D Plastics Company in Flemington. Officials there said he was taken into custody at about 10:30 the night of the murder.

Survivors include her parents; three brothers, David, Bernard and Daniel, all college students; her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Fanme B. Baker of Russia; and her maternal grandfather, Julius I. Levy of Munich, Germany.

REGIONAL MALL PLANNED

For Pennington Circle. Site plans for a major regional shopping mall to be constructed off Route 31 at the Pennington Circle are expected to be submitted to the Hopewell Township Planning Board next month or in October.

Hopewell Center, as the mall would be called, would consist of a Strawbridge & Clothier and Sears Roebuck as its major department stores, with about 100 other smaller stores. The $50 million mall would contain 750,000 square feet of floor space, parking facilities for 4,000 cars, and would occupy a 145-acre site.

A smaller 50-acre, 350,000-square-foot neighborhood shopping center would be built opposite the regional mall and next to the Shop-Rite super market at the circle. Site plans for that development were presented last week to the Planning Board, although no formal action was taken.

Both the shopping mall and the shopping center would be located within a mile of I-95 and the I-295 Beltway, now under construction, and in an area of the Township already zoned for business.

Developer of the regional mall is the Rouse Company of Columbia, Maryland, the firm that built the new town in which it is now located as well as numerous other malls, including Cherry Hill Mall and the Woodbridge Center in New Jersey.

Open By '75? Rouse hopes to begin construction by next spring and open the mall by fall of 1975.

By that time, the developing firm believes, more than 400,000 persons will reside within a 20-minute drive of the Pennington Circle.

The smaller shopping center has been proposed by Kersbaw Associates.

Malls and mall proposals have proliferated throughout the Central New Jersey area, as developers follow the path of the freeway, I-95. Two malls have been proposed for Route 1 in Lawrence Township and the Oxford Valley Mall, located off I-95 in Langhorne, Pa., opened two weeks ago. Oxford Valley is the largest mall — so far — in the East.

ENROLLMENT FIGURES UP

For University's Language Courses. More students than ever before are studying foreign languages at Princeton University, bucking a trend nationally which has recorded an "unprecedented" drop in enrollments during the past two years.

While language study is down, overall, by some 10 percent according to a recent report of the Modern Language Association, it is up 9 percent at Princeton.

Much of the national decrease is attributed to a movement away from required language courses at the college level, according to Richard I. Brod, coordinator of the M.L.A.'s Association of Departments of Foreign Languages. Princeton retains its language requirements

However, a sampling of language instructors here points to a number of other factors beyond a modest increase in the size of the student body and retention of language requirements for the strong position of both traditional and "exotic" lagnuages on the campus.

Travel a Factor. "Youth fares on the airlines," says Dr. Charles D. Klopp, Assistant Professor of Romance Languages and Literatures, who teaches Italian, "have certainly spurred overseas travel and interest in languages on the part of students."

Colleague Dr. Gabriel V Asfar, who teaches French, agrees that travel is a big factor He points out that there are many more "majors" in French now than a few years ago, indicative, he says, of "sincere interest" and not just completion of a minimum three or four course sequence to satisfy University requirements.

Enrollment in Italian courses at Princeton, albeit small, has jumped 126 percent in the last two years (23 to 52 students); it was down 3.7 percent nationally Comparable figures for the French section are 597 and 857, an increase of 43 percent (compared with a national decline of 19 percent). The figures represent those enrolled in language study itself, not "civilization" or "culture courses in translation "

Other sharp increases are recorded at Princeton in Russian, Spanish and German. These are in contrast to drops, nationally.

Princeton faculty members also cited other factors in pinpointing the general increase in interest.

Girls, Too. One, certainly, is the increased enrollment of women. Languages, especially the Romance languages, are tagged as favorite majors at women's colleges and the trend has been noted here.

Another may be a slight modification in some departmental requirements. Students initiating the study of French at Princeton may now complete tbeir required work in three more-concentrated semesters rather than the four terms formerly needed.

"We re getting more minority group kids who are interested in communicating with the 200 million people in 'Third World' Latin America," suggests Francisco J. LaSarte, who's seen a sharp increase in interest in his Spanish classes.

German Department chairman Victor Lange thinks the 12 percent enrollment increase in his department's language courses can be credited, at least in part, to improved teaching Gordon E. Birrell, who heads the department's language study work points to the continuing emphasis on foreign travel and, also, to a feeling among some students interested in litetrature that the texts ought to be read in their original language to be most fully appreciated

In some areas, however, Princeton follows the national trend

According to the Modern Language Association enrollment rose significantly (22 percent) during the past two years in Ancient Greek –and so it has at Princeton, hy 87 percent Up by 97 percent is the number enrolled at Princeton in Chinese language courses. And Hebrew study has mushroomed from a mere 4 to a 1972 73 figure of 46

Dr. W Robert Connor, Professor of Classics, says he feels one of the key factors for the increased enrollment in Greek is that students are searching more now for a set of personal values, and have turned to the

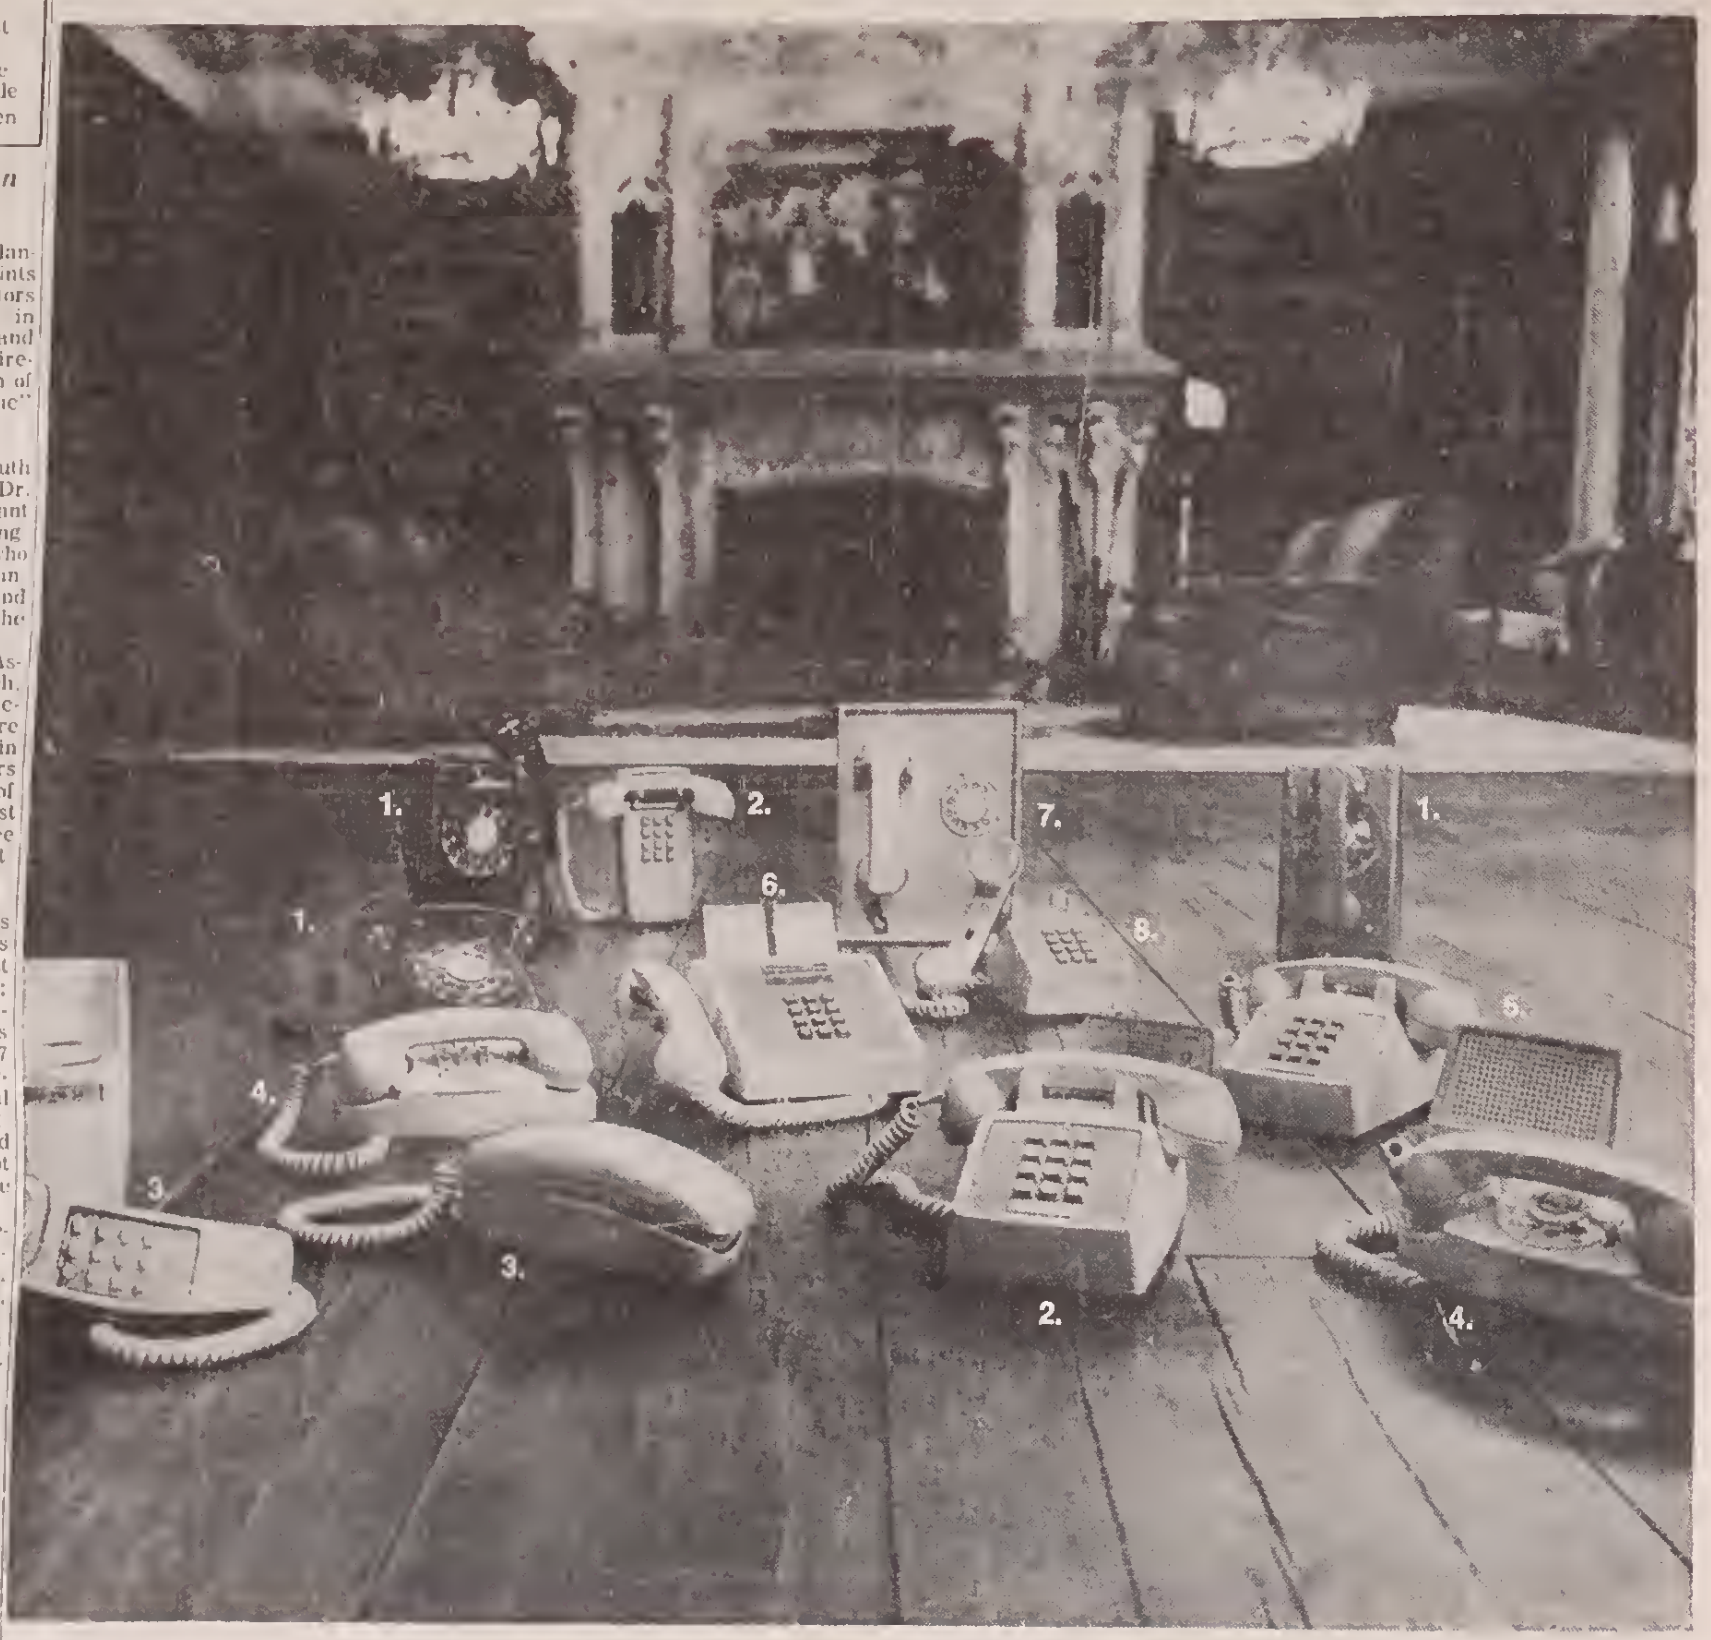
...because no two homes are alike.



A generation or so ago phone service meant simply having a phone. It was black and had a rotary dial.

But times have changed. Today, convenient phone service means having the right phone, in the right place. That's why we have different phones—all kinds—so you can choose the ones that are just right for you, as well as your home and family lifestyle.

Look around your home. Do you have phones where you need them most—where you live, work or simply spend a lot of your time?

Consider the phones shown here in relation to your home. If you think some changes are in order or want some advice, get in touch with your Service Representative. A call to your local Telephone Business Office will do the trick.

1. Our basic dial phone comes in wall and desk models — in decorator colors at no extra charge.
2. Modern Touch-Tone® service makes calling twice as fast, twice as easy. Available at a special bargain price if you need three or more.
3. The sculptured Trimline® phone puts everything right in the palm of your hand. Since you don't need the base to make a call end because it comes with a longer cord, you can tuck it in an out-of-the-way place.
4. Our stylish, practical Princess® phone. Soft 'night light' dial and compact size make it ideal for the bedroom.
5. The speakerphone lets you carry on a conversation 'hands-free.' Amplifies both sides of the conversation.
6. Card Dialer. It's a telephone . . . it's a memory bank. Frequently called numbers are recorded on plastic punch cards. To make a call, put the card in the slot and press a button.
7. Wall phones in various sizes, shapes and colors. Including our designer panel phone for the architectural built-in look.
8. If you have difficulty using the telephone, we have special equipment to make calling easier and more enjoyable. Including this phone — it helps you hear better.

This June Miss Myers became the first woman to be awarded a Bachelor of Science in Engineering degree from Princeton University. She has received a Guggenheim fellowship.

Marie Bogart, 251 Harrison Street, has been singing this summer with the Chautauqua Opera Association.

An apprentice artist with the organization, Miss Bogart had sung only two roles, when she was called upon to replace Julia Lovett in the leading role of Puccini's "Madame Butterfly," before an SRO audience.

In commenting on her performance as Cio Cio San, the Chautauqua Daily said, "Miss Bogart has a very special quality to her voice. The lower register is mellow and there is much sweetness in th ewhole range of it.

"Miss Bogart gave no evidence of stage uneasiness. A woman of infinite dramatic power, she established the fragile spell of "Butterfly" and maintained it until the end. The large audience responded with enthusiastic applause and "bravos."

In Princeton, Miss Bogart has appeared in the Princeton Opera Association's production of "Street Scene" and theP J & B production of "Sound of Music."

Dr. Beryl Robichaud, Fairway Drive, has co-authored a book with Murray F. Buell on "Vegetation of New Jersey," to be published September 10 by the Rutgers University Press.

The book provides a background for understanding why the vegetation of New Jersey is what it is today, a description of the present plant communities of the state, and a look into the future of both vegetation and man in the state.

Dr. Robichaud is a senior vice-president of McGraw-Hill, Inc. She has long been interested in outdoor activities, and in 1971 earned a Ph.D Degree in ecology from Rutgers University.

Currently serving as Associate of the Graduate Faculty in the newly-established institute for Environmental Studies at Rutgers, Dr. Robichaud is researching ways in which fulfillment of the needs of the growing population in New Jersey may be made compatible with the maintenance of a pleasing and healthy environment.

Dr. Carole Krauthamer, 47 Broadripple Drive, has been named as an assistant professor of psychology at the Rutgers College of Arts and Sciences at Camden.

A graduate of Hunter College, Dr. Krauthamer earned master's degrees from both the City University of New York and Rutgers. She also holds a doctoral degree in clinical psychology from the latter institution.

Marine Lance Corporal William Pearce, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Pearce, 60 Parkside Drive, is participating in the desert field exercise Alkali Canyon 73.

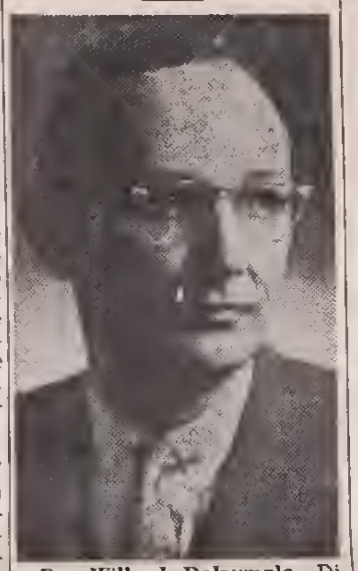
A graduate of Chatham High School, Chatham, N. J., and a 1968 graduate of the University of Tennessee, Chattanooga, Tenn., he joined the Marine Corps in February, 1969.

Mr. Pearce is serving with Company "C", 6th Motor Transport Battalion Force Troops, Fleet Marine Force, Fort Nathan Hale Park, New Haven, Conn.

James R. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Johnson of Pennington, has completed a four-week U.S. Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps field training encampment at Plattsburgh AFB, N.Y. He is a student at Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pa.

Roderick L. Mackeozie, 19 Roper Road, has been named president of the Johnson & Johnson Dental Products Company. Mr. Mackenzie is former president of Ortho Pharmaceutical, Ltd., Canada, a Johnson & Johnson company.

A native of Wadena, Saskatchewan, Mr. Mackenzie had been with Johnson & Johnson companies in Canada since 1964, serving in his most recent position as president of Ortho since 1970.



Dr. Willard Dalrymple, Director of Health Services at Princeton University, has been named Editor of the "Journal of the American College Health Association."

The internationally distributed Journal deals with the health service concerns of colleges and universities. Dr. Dalrymple is currently preparing the fall 1973 issue for publication.

The Journal is published for physicians, nurses, dentists, environmentalists, health educators and other professionals responsible for health services for the over nine million college and university students in the nation.

Dr. Dalrymple was President of the nationwide campus health organization last year, and serves as a member of its Executive Board and Council of Delegates.

He is the author, co-author, and co-editor of a number of books, teaching texts, and articles for medical and educational professional journals. His most recent book, Sex is for Real: Human Sexuality and Sexual Responsibility, was published in 1969 by McGraw-Hill.

Pharmacy Footnotes

by Mel Atlas, Reg. Pharm.

In 1632 a merchant named Leeuwenhoek was born in Holland. In his spare time he ground lenses and mounted them in metal frames to see if things would look larger than they actually were. He looked at anything and everything until one day he tried looking at a drop of water. He discovered that there were organisms in the water as well as in many other substances. He recognized streptococcus, staphylococcus, bacillus. He also discovered that these organisms were killed by heat. Little did he suspect that his discoveries would be the basis of much of modern medical study.

Health and beauty aids are among the many things that await you when you shop at THE FORER PHARMACY, 160 Witherspoon. Farming Activities Part of Future PDS Plans

In the past year, Princeton Day School has become practically as diverse as the Prudential Insurance Company. With the acquisition of the late Dean Mathey's house and 160-acre Pretty Brook Farm, the PDS "rock" now includes corn, chickens, a herd of sheep, hay and an apple orchard.

Princeton Day is also in the business of restoring a historic house, Colross, and planning what amounts to an encounter session between its faculty and trustees.

Plus, the school is preparing for another record enrollment, 840 students this year, with classes beginning Monday, September 10, for grades 5-12; Wednesday, September 12, for 1-4; and Wednesday, September 19, for kindegarten.

An open house for new students and their parents, excepting kindegarten children, will be held Thursday from 3 to 5 p.m.

Back-to-school night for parents of middle school children will be Tuesday, October 2, at 8 p.m.; for upper school October 9 at 8 p.m.; and for lower school October 16 at 8 p.m.

Tax Problem. The land and house were donated to the school by a foundation established by the late Mr. Mathey. Princeton Day is continuing the operation of the farm to qualify for the lower property tax rate applied to farm land.

The Mathey property also includes some heavy forestation and rugged terrain, and this will be the site of several classes in outdoor education—Outward Bound types of exercises in which students are exposed to such challenges as climbing trees and crossing chasms on rope bridges that they have made.

Dean Mathey's old house has now become the new headmaster's residence, into which Douglas O. McClure has moved from Colross.

Colross is now being remodeled to provide six new classrooms and office space for the upper school history and Latin teachers. The renovations are expected to be completed in time for the first class.

Costly Proposition. "These renovations have been very expensive," said Carl Storey, business manager of Princeton Day. "The house was built in 1732 in Virginia and moved here in the 1930s. We have wanted to keep the interior and exterior in their original form."

The school is also completing construction of a new photographic laboratory.

The faculty-trustee meeting, the first of its kind at Princeton Day, will be at the Blairstown Summer Camp on September 7 and 8. The future of the school is the general theme of the discussions.

Headed by Princeton University Health Director Willard Dalrymple, a trustee, the organizers of the meeting plan what they call "a fish-bowl session." The entire group will sit in chairs encircling six or seven chairs in the middle.

Participants High. The person addressing the group sits in the middle. Anyone wishing to rebut him or make an additional point must also move to the middle. So far over 30 of the 90 fulltime faculty have indicated they will attend the session, and 17 of 25 trustees reported they would be present.

Blairstown will also be the site of several meetings between classes of students and faculty. Outdoor seminars and roundtable talks are planned in an effort to improve the communication between these two groups.

A revised English curriculum begun last yer for seniors has been expanded this year to include all juniors. The principle has been extended to 11th and 12th grade history courses.

English and history courses in these grades are now offered on a one trimester basis, rather than lasting a complete school year. The result is a greater variety of shorter courses available to students.

Scholarships Up. The Princeton Day School administration has a new headmaster of the middle school. He is David Frothingham, formerly a mathematics teacher and assistant headmaster at the East Woods School in Oyster Bay, Long Island.

He replaces Fowler Merle-Smith, who returns to teaching English in the middle school

---

The scholarship fund expanded to $192,440 for the new year. More than 120 students will receive financial assistance.

Princeton Day School received its second annual grant of $10,000 from the Independence Foundatinn, which will continue to make such grants for three more years.

Others, he says, have had their appetites whet by "in translation" courses and have decided to learn the language well enough to read in the original.

Both Dr. Marius Jansen, Professor of History and East Asian Studies, and Dr. Ta-Tuan Ch'en, Professor of East Asian Studies, cite the "Nixon diplomacy" for the sharp rise in Chinese language enrollment. It is due, they say, to the "normalization" of relations between the United States and The People's Republic of China and to the new possibilities of contact.

TEST DATE LISTED

For Service Academy Opeoings. Senator Clifford P. Case has announced plans to hold a Civil Service examination on Saturday, September 29, to assist him in selecting his nominees for the United States Naval, Military, Air Force and Merchant Marine Academies for the classes entering in the summer of 1974. For those unable to take the September 29 test, there will be a makeup test which will be given on a school day at a date to be announced in due time.

This examination is open to legal residents of the state of New Jersey. New applicants who wish to take the test should write to Senator Case, Old Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510. All candidates should be at least 17 years old and must not have reached their 22nd birthday by July 1 of the year in which they will enter one of the academies.

Senator Case has two appointments to fill at the Military Academy, two at the Air Force Academy and one at the Naval Academy. Ten nominees, a principal and nine alternates, will be chosen for each vacancy. All candidates are required by the Academic Boards of the respective academies to take the Scholastic Aptitude Test or the American College Test, as well as a medical examination and physical aptitude test. All candidates, except the quaified principal, will be evaluated and ranked in order of merit by the Academic Boards for possible selection for alternate appointments to the academies

The State of New Jersey is allocated ten vacancies for the class entering the Merchant Marine Academy in 1974. Ten young men will be authorized to compete for the vacancies

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought to you
By John Bernard

Oddly enough, football was not always an autumn sport. Back in the old days, some colleges started their regular football seasons in winter or spring, for instance, Georgia opened its season in 1892 by playing its opening football game against Auburn on Feb. 22! And there were other examples like that.

* * *

When was the last time an Ivy League football team won the national championship? It hasn't happened for many years. Last time was 1925 when Dartmouth was voted national champs.

What are the most points a football team can score in the fewest minutes. Well, the all-time record in a big-time game was set by the New York Giants who once scored the incredible total of 21 points in 35 SECONDS! It happened at Pittsburgh Oct. 7, 1945. With 50 seconds to go in the first half, the Giants scored a TD. Then they kicked-off, Pittsburgh fumbled, the Giants recovered, and on the first play Arnie Herber threw a TD pass. On the next kickoff, Pittsburgh again fumbled, Bill Piccollo of New York scooped up the ball, and ran for a TD. There were then 15 seconds to go. So, that was 21 points (all extra points were good) in just 35 seconds!

I bet you didn't know that there is no such thing as ideal health insurance. But, you can come close. We are specialists with the know how to give you an insurance plan that fits your needs.

Early Tiger Problem: Thin Defensive Manpower

MINUS 12: Carl Barisich at work on a Saturday afternoon. Here he is about to throw Harvard quarterback Eric Crone for a 12-yard loss in Tigers' 10-7 upset of Crimson last year. All-Ivy and All-East, the 250-lb. defensive tackle was drafted by the Cleveland Browns.

While Princeton football fans looking at the coming season may well feel that solution of the quarterback problem is first on the Tigers' list of priorities for 1973, manpower shortages that exist on the defensive platoon are a major cause for concern among Bob Casciola and his staff.

At quarterback, where lack of proper balance between a running and passing threat has troubled Princeton for the past two years, three holdovers and two sophomores will battle for the starting assignment. On defense, however, only one starter among the front four returns; three starting jobs, including the vital end position vacated by Captain Mike Kincaid, will go to personnel with little or no previous playing time; and only a single letterman can be counted among the entire second unit on the depth chart.

A new coach and a new offense need time to put wheels under the Tiger; time to build an attack that can produce a whole lot more than the 0 to 15 points which the badly hobbled Princetonians mustered in seven of their nine games last fall. While the offensive line is also short lettermen at two starting positions, and is likewise thin in reserve depth, ability to create a capable defense may well hold the key to Princeton's measure of success during the first half of the 1973 season.

Kincaid was an All-Ivy choice and Carl Barisich was not only the lone unanimous selection for that team but was All-East as well. His specialty was sacking quarterbacks (five times in the Brown game) and his all-around ability made him a Cleveland Browns' draft choice despite the fact that a knee operation before the 1971 season began pared his varsity career to two years.

Both Ends Last. Gone with Kincaid are Steve Hausmann, who anchored the right side of the line; corner back Barry Richardson and linebacker Joe Parsons. They were all regulars; four other lettermen who saw considerable duty have also completed their careers.

Despite the loss of Barisich, Casciola is well satisfied with his pair of tackles. One is Ken Beytin, a two-year letterman who packs almost the same weight that Barisich did and has fine mobility. The other is 240 lb. Tom Schalch, a junior who won his letter last fall while serving as a replacement for Barisich. Without seeking to stir up pre-season dust, Casciola says, "They are as good a pair of defensive tackles as the Ivy League will have this year."

Jim Shaw, Hausmann's replacement last fall, will move his 6-3, 206-lb. frame into the starting slot at right end, but the job at left end is wide open. A leading possibility is sophomore Larry Gruner, who had a good season with the freshmen last fall and outranks the available varsity holdovers.

Just possibly, Casciola may be able to switch his top linebacker to the glaring vacancy at left end. That would be 6-2, 218-lb. Tony Riposta, a two-year letterman of marked ability. Such a move must, however, be based on ability of one of the little-used reserves to step into Riposta's shoes at left linebacker, and such good fortune may not smile upon the Tiger.

Experience Elsewhere. Tom Martin, a 207-lb. junior who won his letter last fall, will start at middle guard. If Riposta stays at linebacker, Rich Ziegler (6-2, 206) will pair with him. A Hun School alumnus, Ziegler spelled Martin last fall and gained worthwhile experience.

Glen Pratt, another sophomore, is currently listed as the starting left cornerback, pairing with letterman Blair Magaziner. Rounding out the deep secondary are Gary Marshall and Jim Stephens. A two-year letterman, Marshall at a mere 155 pounds is one of the smallest football players on anybody's varsity, but is living proof with his speed and play diagnosis that you don't have to be big to be good.

After that, the depth chart lists ten players that few fans who saw all of last year's games would recognize by name. One, junior Steve Heard, is a letterman; not all of the others have even limited varsity experience.

The very small measure of success Princeton achieved a year ago was traceable almost completely to the fact that the toothless Tigers were able to hold Rutgers to six points and Columbia to a scoreless tie while managing a fourth-quarter TD against the Scarlet. With such defensive accomplishments unlikely to reoccur, the offense may have to buy time for the defense — a real football paradox.

24 GAMES SCHEDULED

For Tiger Hockey Team

Contests with NCAA semi-finalists Boston College and Cornell and an appearance in the Williams Holiday Tournament highlight the 24 game Princeton University hockey schedule.

The Orange and Black skaters will be seeking to improve on a 5-18 mark last year, which included victories over Yale and Penn, plus a couple of lesser Division II opponents, St. Anselm's and Buffalo. The fifth "victory" was achieved when Boston University had to forfeit its 6-1 triumph on the ice, because it used an ineligible player.

The Tigers will visit Boston College on Dec. 15. They face two games with Cornell, hosting the Big Red on January 30 and then travelling to Ithaca on Feb. 22.

Sports In Princeton

Princeton will join Bowdoin, Bishop University and host Williams in the round - robin Holiday tourney at Williams from Dec. 27-29. They will also play home and home series with Ivy foes Brown, Dartmouth, Harvard, Penn and Yale.

Other home opponents include St. Lawrence, in the season opener on Nov. 28, Boston University, Army, Clarkson and Northeastern. On the road, the Tigers are scheduled to play RPI and Providence.

In all, Princeton will play 12 games at home and 12 on the road this year under first year coach Jack Semler.

The Schedule: Nov. 28, St. Lawrence; Dec. 1, at Brown; 5, at RPI; 8, Boston Univ.; 11, at Penn; 14, at Providence; 15, at Boston College; 18, Army; 27-29, Williams Holiday Tournament (Bishop Univ., Bowdoin, Williams); Jan. 7, Clarkson; 11, at Harvard; 12, at Dartmouth; 26, Northeastern; 30, Cornell; Feb. 2, at Dartmouth; 6, at Yale; 9, Harvard; 15, Brown; 16, Yale; 20, Colgate; 22, at Cornell; 27, Penn.

JAYCEES PLAN CONTEST

To Aid Scholarship Program. The Hightstown East Windsor Jaycees will conduct a Hole-in-One And Closest-to-the-Pin Contest on September 8-10. All the proceeds of the contest will go to the Jaycees' Career Opportunity Grant (COG) program.

The event is being sponsored by Franklin State Bank, which will soon be opening a branch office in East Windsor.

The COG program provides funds to local individuals under the age of 21 who plan to either directly enter the job market or plan to pursue a one or two-year program in vocational, technical or occupational studies.

Through this program, the Jaycees hope to make it possible for individuals to enter the careers of their choice, when this might not have been otherwise possible due to financial limitations. In addition to grants based on financial need, the program also provides recognition to outstanding vocationally-oriented students with no financial need through honorary awards.

Earlier this year the Jaycees initiated this program by awarding $1,400 in grants to worthy individuals. The Jaycees would like to continue and expand the program this year and it is hoped that the hole-in-one and closest-to-the-pin contest will provide sufficient revenues to accomplish the goal.

The contest will be conducted at the 19th Hole Golf Range, located on Butcher Road just off Route 33 east of Twin Rivers. The event will be run on Saturday, September 8 and Sunday, September 9 from 10 to 9; and on Monday, September 10 from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m.

The entrance fee will be $1 for three balls. Each contestant making a hole in one will receive a $200 savings bond. In addition, contestants will be competing for over $500 worth of merchandise for the shots hit closest to the pin.

LAPIDUS EDGED OUT

In Pennsylvania Tourney. Top seeded Jay Lapidus narrowly missed a singles victory in last week's Eastern Pennsylvania Boys Clay Court Championship at the Philmont Country Club in Huntingdon Valley, Pennsylvania. Playing in his final tennis tournament of the year in the boys 14's, he overturned two other Princeton players before bowing to number two seeded Louis Meehan, 7-6, 7-5, in the close final round.

He went on to win the doubles crown with Meehan by defeating Peter Monaghan and Richard Marks, 6-2, 6-2.

Andre Eichenberger and Dan Aronovic also did well in the 14's singles — until they met Lapidus.

Andre topped Bill Brown, 6-0, 6-0, and Robert Doig, 6-0, 6-4, before losing to Lapidus in the fourth round, 2-6, 1-6.

Dan, who was seeded number seven, beat the fourth seed, Oleh Hnatiuk, 6-4, 6-3, and twelfth seeded Ray Kuzava, 6-1, 6-4. Reaching the semi-finals he was defeated by Lapidus, 1-6, 1-6.

Tie Breaker Loss. Eichenberger and Aronovic were seeded number four for the 14's doubles. They topped Colin and Nichol, 2-6, 6-2, 6-2, on their way to a tight match with the number two seeded team of Marks and Monaghan, to whom they lost in a tie-breaker in the semi-finals.

Also represented from Princeton at the Pennsylvania tennis competition were: Fain Hackney and Chuck Kohli in the 12-and-under category; Fred Berkelhammer and Jeff Lyle in the 16's; and Randy Thomas and David Loy playing in the 18-and-under group.

TENNIS PLAYOFFS SET

For Inner-City Players. More than 150 youngsters from Washington, Philadelphia and New York will compete in the National Junior Tennis League playoffs Thursday and Friday on the Princeton University courts.

In its fifth season of league play, the program organizes teams of novice players at inner city playgrounds. Teams compete against each other for the right to enter the playoffs.

Skip Hartman, a Princeton University graduate, is one of the organizers of the National Junior Tennis League.

Local coordinator of the playoffs is Bill Humes, tennis professional with the Princeton Community Tennis Pro-

Bjorklund Makes Progress with Jets

After partaking in the Jets victory over San Francisco, Bjorklund ranked among the active backs in yardage gained. In the loss to the Giants at New Haven Sunday, he picked up 13 yards in four carries and added one pass reception.

Actually, while Bjorklund is in the lineup to carry the ball, it is on his pass blocking that his career will largely rise or fall. If he can't help protect Joe Namath when not sent out as a potential receiver, the flashiest running in the world won't keep him in the lineup.

Hank Bjorklund, who picked up his Princeton diploma two years ago and then began a career with the New York Jets, has started the last two exhibition games Coach Weeb Ewbank's team has played. What's more important, he has earned the coach's confidence for the future.

"Hank can do it all," Ewbank said thereby giving the former Princeton halfback credit on three counts: his ball carrying, pass receiving and pass blocking. "Bjorklund is very dedicated and has been running very well," Ewbank declared, adding, "He's got a shot to start if Emerson Boozer doesn't come around."

Bjorklund's elevation to a starting position came as a combination of his own ability and the absence of three backs who ranked ahead of him at the end of the 1972 season. John Riggins, the team's leading ground gainer and workhorse, and Boozer have been holdouts. Cliff McClain, rated no. 3, has been sidelined with sore ribs.

Hank began his Jets' career on the taxi squad, after surviving a series of cuts last summer that lopped more than a score of rookies off the roster. By mid-season, he had been activated, playing mostly on teams of specialists.

REPAIR RULES SOUGHT To Protect Motorists. The New Jersey Division of Consumer Affairs has proposed new regulations requiring automobile repair shops to prepare itemized bills before performing work.

The proposed regulations would prohibit repairmen from working on a car unless the motorist had signed in advance a work sheet approving charges for parts and labor. If the repair costs exceed this original estimate, then the shop must obtain the customer's consent before continuing with the additional work.

Shops also will be required to specify whether the replacement parts were new, reconditioned or used.

Although minor modifications are still a possibility, the new regulations are scheduled to be effective by the end of this month.

The new rules have been published in the New Jersey Register, a manual of regulations drafted by all state agencies. Publication in the Register is required before the state can formally adopt new regulations.

Trumped Up Bills. Although the Consumer Affairs Division is not certain how many New Jersey motorists are billed annually in trumped up repair bills, it is convinced that the regulations will prove beneficial in a state with 3 million cars in use.

"I don't consider these too strong," said Mrs. Millicent Fenwick, director. "There is nothing in the regulations that will bother most of the highly reputable repair shops in the state."

Under the proposed regulations, the motorist is further protected by written guarantees, spelling out what parts are covered, how long the guarantee is in effect, and what obligations — such as routine checkups and servicing — the owner has to maintain the warranty.

The new rules also require repair shops to keep filed for two years all repair invoices and similar documents.

New Cars Too. Advertising of new cars is also governed under the new regulations. Dealers will be required to state the year, make and model of the vehicles so htat customers will not be lured by the false promise of a cut rate or special sale.

Dealers may not claim that the cost has been reduced when the car actually is being sold for the regular price.

AWARD TO BE PRESENTED To FMC Manager. Dr. Donald C. Winkler, manager—metals applications research at the FMC Research and Development Laboratories, Route One, has been selected to receive the 1972 Medal Award from the Nonferrous Division of the Wire Association, Inc.

The award, to be conferred upon Dr. Winkley later this year, is in recognition for a paper entitled, "Hydrogen Peroxide Pickling of Copper Rod," which was prepared and delivered last year.

Dr. Winkley joined FMC in 1965 as a research chemist and has specialized in the field of applied research for peroxygen chemicals. He was promoted to his present position in 1969. He is a graduate of Northwestern University, where he received the bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering in 1961, and obtained the Doctorate in morganic chemistry from the University of Tennessee in 1965.

During his scholastic period, Dr. Winkley was also employed as a radioisotope research scientist by Oak Ridge National Laboratories in Oak Ridge, Tennessee. Dr. Winkley, his wife and two children reside at 51 Stonicker Drive, Lawrence Township.

The Governor's VIEW

By Gov. William T. Cahill

We received word recently that New Jersey is in excellent financial condition.

This was indicated by the fact that the State's AAA credit rating, the highest obtainable for its general obligation bonds, had been renewed by Moody's Investors Service, Inc.

It means that Moody's, one of the nation's foremost, independent financial services, had studied the State's fiscal condition, and found it sound and healthy.

There are several inferences we should draw from this . and several that we should not draw. For one, it does not mean that New Jersey has all the money it could use for any purposes it cares to spend money on.

Many hundreds of requests are made every year by persons and organizations asking for State funds to finance projects and programs in which they are interested. Often it is possible to aid some of them.

Many are too extravagant and beyond the realm of prudent and responsible spending of public funds. And in some cases the requests are illegal or simply prompted by the hope for personal profit, and are rejected outright.

State Like Family. In many cases, running the finances of the State is very much like running the finances of one's own family.

The family has its mortgage payments and similar fixed charges while the State has the payments on its bonded indebtedness to meet; then there's the problems both face of education of the children and medical and health expenses; the family pays for the car or for travel on public transportation while the State pays for roads and support of public transport. And here are other parallel obligations.

In both cases, there comes a time when income has to equal outgo. If it does not, then in the State as in the family, there are only three things that can be done — increase income or decrease outgo or a combination of both.

In my first year in office, I had to submit a budget in which income would meet outgo and I had to do it within 30 days.

I had inherited a $300 million deficit from the previous administration, so there was no possible way to submit a balanced budget without increasing revenues, which was done through an increase in the sales tax.

This was the only increase in a major tax during my entire term of office.

Slight Tax - Increase. The 1972-73 budget was balanced through a slight increase in some luxury taxes, but otherwise all obligations were met through a combination of improved efficiency of State operations and through increased revenues from the State lottery. But the use of lottery funds was limited by law to education and institutions and agencies.

Nevertheless, by careful budgeting, we were able to provide major increases in funds for elementary, secondary and higher education, for urban aid, mass transit and transportation improvements and for environmental protection.

Of course, we did not do all the things we would like to have done no more than most families can do all the things they would like to do, simply because there isn't sufficient money.

There is one fiscal problem, however, that still remains to be solved. It will not resolve itself. It will never diminish of itself. It must be attacked head on.

This is the problem of equitable distribution of taxes. Some people in our State pay more than their fair share. Others pay less. Some get more benefits from their taxes, particularly in the field of education, and others get less.

I attempted to correct this situation, but was unsuccessful. I had some of the most capable people in the State study this situation and recommend solutions, and I presented these solutions to the Legislature, where they were rejected.

As a result, many of our old people on fixed incomes are forced to pay property taxes which escalate every year. Some people ill and out of work face similar penalties through no fault of theirs.

Some poor people in cities pay, proportionately, more property taxes than more well-to-do suburbanites. Our present system of taxation is not based on whether or not you can afford to pay taxes, but rather on the property you own and where it is located.

Finding a solution to this will be probably the single biggest problem facing my successor.

CONTE-STAATS VICTOR

In Softball Playoff. Conte-Staats, a new entry in the Princeton Recreation Department Adult Softball League, was formed when half the members of the old Conte's Bar merged with leftover players from the old Staats Electric team. It proved to be a winning combination.

Conte-Staats won the softball playoff for the league championship last week when it defeated perennial runner-up Ivy Inn, three games to none. The playoff victories were the ninth in a row for C-S.

Conte-Staats edged Ivy Inn, which had finished first in the regular standings, 7-6, in the opening game. In game two, the Rig Green saw a potential first inning rally cut short by a base running violation.

It was costly because C-S promptly scored five runs -- all it needed as it turned out — on hits by Mark Hassan, Wes Cawley, and Jack Roberts. Bill Staats and Rob Staats both drove in runs on sacrifice flies during the inning.

However, hits by Bill Cirullo, Doug Watson and Tony Pirone enabled Ivy to narrow the gap to 5-4 in the fifth but C-S pulled away again on a two-run single by Bill Staats in the same inning. The victors picked up their final run when pinch hitter George Cirullo drove home Gary Drake.

Then, in what proved to be the final game of the series, C-S again jumped out to a 1-0 lead on hits by Hassan, Roberts, and John Milchanoski. Ivy tied the game up in its half of the first inning as Bob Mucciarrelli drove in Watson with a single.

Lou Balestrieri led off the third inning with a single for Conte-Staats. After Rob Staats and Hassan flied out, Conte-Staats connected with four straight singles to drive in three runs. The first four batters in the C-S line-up were also in the middle of another three-run rally in the top half of the 5th inning. Both Hassan and Cawley opened the inning with hits. After Roberts was walked intentionally, Milchanoski delivered a two-run single. Chuck Staats' ground ball scored Roberts from third.

Still later for the third time in the game, the first four batters in the C-S line-up left their mark on the score sheet. Hassan stroked a double down the first base line and was driven in on Cawley's blast off first baseman, Tony Pirone. Watson then tried to make a shoe string catch of Roberts' line shot to right center field. The ball got through for a round tripper for Roberts and a commanding 10-1 C-S lead.

Ivy's last chance at the bat made the game more respectable as Mucciarrelli and Buddy Britton led off with singles. John Armonia then lifted a shot between Bill Staats and Gary Drake for a three-run home run.

Although it was apparent that Ivy was not hitting the ball as well as it did during the regular season, it still could not detract from the fine defensive play of C-S. Gary Drake in particular came up with seemingly countless clutch catches that turned games around for C-S in both the semi-final and final series. And Cawley contined to excel defensively at shortstop.

Ivy, which entered the playoff with a .438 team batting average—highest in the league —could manage only .319 during the playoffs. Conte-Staats, in turn, batted for a team average of .419.

SALES' EARNINGS UP

At Princeton Electronic. Princeton Electronic Products, Inc. has reported that its sales and earnings were up sharply for the fiscal year ended May 31.

Revenues were $1,960,276 compared with revenues of $1,110,522 for 1972 and profits for the current period totaled $84,154, compared with a loss of $639,223 (loss of $176,004 plus extraordinary adjustment of $463,219) for the prior year according to Dr. Steven R. Hofstein, President.

"The performance for this fiscal year was encouraging in that the profit level obtained was after research and development costs of $275,000. Our continued high level commitment to product research and development is an essential element of the company's growth into the large potential markets for its products and technology."

Dr. Hofstein also attributed these results to increased demands for the company's silicon storage tube unit used by maunfacturers of x-ray haggage inspection equipment; to expanding deliveries of its 801 graphic data terminal; and to a rise in international business

Beginning at the end of its 1972 fiscal year, the company's management decided to change its policy relating to the accounting treatment of research and development costs to expense all of these costs as they are incurred. Profit and loss information for the current fiscal year reflects this change.

Business Seminars Set

The Chamber of Commerce will hold two seminars this fall, the first a General Clerical Seminar under the direction of Rider College Business School.

It will be aimed specifically to instruct clerical help and receptionists in small business or professional offices. The course will be offered one evening from 6-10 at a nominal charge and will include such subjects as good grooming, letter form, correct phone answering, filing, organization, time savers and business machines.

The second will be a two-day Small Business Management Seminar, scheduled for early October. "Personnel Management" and "Financial Management" are subjects to be included. Further information can be obtained at the Chamber office, 44 Nassau Street.

TIPS ON TAKING TESTS

From ETS Specialists. If you're going back to high school, or even to an elementary grade next month, chances are that you'll be taking several standardized multiple-choice tests during the school year.

While no special test-taking techniques can take the place of the skills and knowledge measured by such a test, there are some general guidelines that can help you do your best, Educational Testing Service (ETS) reports.

ETS designs many of the nation's major multiple-choice tests, from reading readiness exams for first graders to admission tests for prospective graduate school students.

First, ETS says, learn about the nature of the test. If it's a test of academic ability, just what skills is it supposed to measure? Are they verbal, quantitative, or what? Certainly your teacher can brief you about tests used in the classroom.

But if you plan to take a major standardized test offered nationally, and if a descriptive booklet accompanies your registration form, look it over carefully. In almost all cases it can tell you just about all you need to know, and may include sample questions, as well.

Review Concepts. If you are scheduled for an achievement test in a particular subject, it's best to review the subject matter.

Although most standardized achievement tests seek information that has been acquired over a long period of time, it doesn't hurt to make a general review of the main facts and concepts of a course.

But, while last-minute cramming the night before might help on some tests given by your teacher, it will probably do little to raise your score on a scholastic aptitude test. This kind of test is designed to evaluate your skill in using information and draws upon abilities developed over a long period.

ETS stresses that not even professional coaching schools claiming to prepare students for tests measuring academic aptitude accomplish significant score changes by their cram courses. The organization suggests that the best preparation is a good night's sleep just before the test.

Ask Questions. If you are taking a test during a national test administration, like one for the PSAT or the College Boards, be sure you understand the ground rules and the directions.

If they are not clearly understood, be sure to ask questions. Since you should pace yourself during an examination, find out just how much time you will be allowed to complete the test, for example.

An important rule to follow: Don't spend too much time on tough questions. First, answer those you are sure about. Later, come back to those that might require more time.

In short, don't waste your time mulling over a very hard question. Even the best students are not expected to know the answer to every choice test.

Only an Estimate. One last word, if you have answered all the questions before the allowed time, go back and study the doubtful ones. There are always a few questions that you can profitably review.

You also should remember that because a score from a standardized multiple-choice test is only an estimate of a person's abilities or knowledge, it takes on real meaning only in relationship to other information.

Few teachers or admissions people rely solely on one standardized test score as the basis for a major educational decision.

YOUNG MEMBERS SOUGHT

For Trenton Museum. An informal group of young adults and students met last week to explore ways in which the New Jersey State Museum in Trenton could spark interest in its activities among younger people

Proposals considered include a special reduced membership fee, perhaps $5 instead of the usual $15, for fulltime students in high school or college. Also discussed were possible youth-oriented activities, such as a special exhibit of young artists' works.

Mrs. Cay Armstrong of Princeton, chairman of the Friends of the Museum and present at the meeting, termed it "an important first step toward broadening activities and membership of the Friends." She later discussed the proposals with Museum Director Leah Phyfer Sloshberg, who was "enthusiastic about the prospect of added support for the Museum."

Tentatively known as Young People for the Museum, the group is considering organizing itself as a subgroup of the Friends. An organizational meeting will be held Sunday, September 23, at 3 p.m. in the Museum, at the Cultural Center on West State Street in Trenton.

Young people in or out of school wishing to participate should contact Mrs. Alice Carter, secretary of the Friends of the Museum at 394-5310 from 10-5 weekdays; Mrs. Nancy Hall of Hopewell, 466-0972; or Karen Hackett, (215) 493-4898.

The WIFE program was inated to enable women to pursue college studies part time during convenient day time hours. The participants attend classes together in their first year.

Then htey are channeled into the regular class schedule to accommodate their specific course choices.

Courses being offered at the West Windsor campus include English Composition 1, Foundations of Math I, Introduction to Psychology and Beginning Spanish 1. The Trenton Center courses were not listed.

LIBRARY HERE FIRST

In Ethiopian Manuscripts. A leading Ethiopian scholar has informed Princeton University officials that its Firestone Library has the largest collection of Ethiopian manuscripts in the United States.

Dr. Ephraim Isaac, 36, an Associate Professor of African Studies at Harvard University and perhaps the only academician from his country in the United States specializing in classical Ethiopic literature and language, has told librarians here:

"I thought perhaps the New York Public Library or the Library of Congress would have a large collection and I've also viewed those at the University of Chicago, Harvard, Michigan, and Berkeley, among others but Princeton clearly has not only the largest collection in this country but one of the largest collections of Ethiopic manuscripts and scrolls anywhere outside of my native country."

While the Princeton curators have known since 1942, the year the manuscripts came here as part of the Robert Garrett Collection, of the library's Ethiopian holdings, they were not aware of the scope and details of the manuscripts and scrolls.

The collection is not large numerically. There are some 100 bound manuscripts and 162 scrolls, all carefully handlettered on vellum (made of lamb, goat, or calf skin), and dating from the 15th to the 19th centuries. Most of the manuscripts deal with religious subjects, while the scrolls are mainly on the subject of health.

RUTGERS PROGRAM SET

For Second Year. Take the equivalent of five challenging college courses all rolled up into one?

Master it on your own time — whether you're a busy housewife with children to mind, an assembly line worker on rotatnig shifts or a business executive who can't tie himself to set school hours?

An educational program that fulfills these challenges does not seem possible. But it is happening this fall at Rutgers University, which for the second year will offer a revolutionary British import: the Open University prgoram.

Tried out for the first time in the United States last year at Rutgers and two other universities, the program showed that it is possible to use highly sophisticated British materials to provide quality education to students who cannot attend regular college classes because of their work, location or home responsibilities.

Motivation a Must. Applications for this fall's programs are now being accepted. There are no formal academic requirements to enter, but Dr. Jessie C. Hartline, program director, points out that prospective students must have the motivation to study independently and to handle the demanding weekly assignments.

The backbone of each 36-week course is a series of thought-provoking workbooks supplemented by reading lists, audio cassettes, films and a counseling system. This multimedia approach was developed for Great Britain's Open University at the cost of several million dollars.

Rutgers University offered three Open University courses last year — humanities, science and mathematics — and is adding a fourth this year, The Age of Revolution.

Each is interdisciplinary in nature and is the equivalent of five regular college courses. Those who successfully complete an Open University course receives 15 credits at Rutgers' University College, the evening adult school at the state university.

Credits Earned. In addition, high school teachers enrolled in the foundation math and science courses earn nine credits toward teacher certificaiton from the Rutgers Graduate School of Education.

While the math and science courses are aimed at those working toward their undergraduate degree, Dr. Hartline noted that they also are ideal for businessmen who want to understand better their professional journals and high school teachers who want to catch up with the latest developments in their fields.

The interdisciplinary nature of the courses—the science one covers topics from physics, chemistry, biochemistry, biology and geology—and the use of films and audio cassettes gives teachers new techniqques for instructing their own classes as well as deeper understanding of the subject matter, Dr. Hartline said.

Some 325 students — more than half between the ages of 25 and 44— took Open University courses last year, and Rutgers expects a similar number this fall. The flexibility of the program is its major drawing card, though according to Dr. Hartline, each student seems to have a different reason why flexibility is necessary.

No Classes to Miss. "The housewife with sick kids can stay home with them all week and not have to worry about missing a class—because there are no classes," the program director explained. "She can do the reading at home and listen to any tapes she missed or films she needs at the study center on campus the next week. The study center has day, evening and Saturday hours—and a professor is always on hand to discuss all phases of the course work."

This flexibility of hours also makes the program ideal for workers on rotating shifts or irregular schedules, such as the airline pilot and businessmen who signed up last year.

The other major drawing card of the program, Dr. Hartline said, is the ability to cover so much in one course. The foundation humanities course, for example, blends together philosophy, history, literature, art and music. "It is one of the best over views I've seen of the development of Western thought and expression," Dr. Hartline said.

News Of The CHURCHES

DANCE, SOCIAL PLANNED

By Street Minister. For Keenan Orro, the young Princeton street minister who replaced William Kight in July, the summer has been long, hot and frustrating.

In an effort to reclaim some of the interest and financial support that seemed to dry up when Mr. Kight left for a position with the Riverside Church in New York, Mr. Orro will hold a coffee hour for parents and interested residents this Saturday from 5 to 8 in the Princeton Youth Center, 102 Witherspoon Street. Later, from 9 to 1, he will sponsor a dance for the young people at the same location.

Mr. Kight, who will preach the next morning at 10 in the Princeton University Chapel, is expected also to attend the activities Saturday to sound a note of support for Mr. Orro's efforts.

Donation for the coffee hour is $2; for the dance, $1. The funds will go to the street minister's discretionary fund.

Because of the low level of support for that fund, Mr. Orro has been forced to be innovative, as well as discreet, in its use.

Food or Woe? One common plea he receives is from young people who have found themselves on the street with no support, and without a dollar for the next meal. If he gives them a buck, Mr. Orro cannot be sure whether the money is going for a hamburger or a jug of wine.

He has now instituted a meal ticket program with the Imperial Restaurant. When young people ask Mr. Orro for a dollar for some food they will get a ticket for just that — and only that — at the Imperial.

Public interest in wayward young people remains high, Mr. Orro said. Last Sunday he participated with Mr. Kight on a New York radio program, which received a flood of calls from people wanting to know more about the problems of "street kids."

From his windowless, un-air-conditioned office on the upper level of the Chambers Street building of Nassau Presbyterian Church, and now driving a new used car that consumes less gas than his former one, Mr. Orro is trying to revive that same interest among Princeton residents.

BARAKA SPEAKS SUNDAY

At First Baptist, Imamu Amiri Baraka, the poet, author, and political organizer also known as LeRoi Jones, will be the guest speaker for the "Bright Hope Memorial Experience," Sunday at 10 a.m. at the First Baptist Church, John Street and Avalon Place.

At that same time the Rev. William Kight, former street minister, will deliver the sermon at the Princeton University Chapel. And at 9:30 the Rev. Keenan Orro, Mr. Kight's successor, will preach at the Mount Pisgah A.M.E. Church.

"With Baraka and Kight speaking at the same time, I wouldn't be surprised if my church were just about empty," said Mr. Orro.

BULLETIN NOTES

Witherspoon Street Presbyterian Church will hold its pre-fall activities program next week, from 9:30 to noon, Monday through Friday. Children from age 3 through the sixth grade are invited to participate in a series of crafts, games, drama and music programs, culminating Friday in a worship service that they plan and conduct by themselves. For registration call, 924-1666.

Obituaries

Edgar M. Smith, 64, of 1 Columbia Avenue, Hopewell, died August 14 in the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, Philadelphia. Born in Lambertville, he had lived in Hopewell since 1946.

An engineering consultant, Mr. Smith had been a member of Hopewell Borough Council for 11 years and was in his third one-year term as its president. He had attended Drexel Institute of Technology, Rider College, the School of Industrial Arts in Trenton and Rutgers University.

A member of the Hopewell Fire Department, Mr. Smith was a charter member of the Hopewell Ambulance Corps. He also belonged to the Trenton Engineers Club and the New Jersey Professional Society.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Louise S. Smith; a daughter, Miss Sharon L. Smith of Philadelphia; a brother, Paul of Princeton; and a sister, Miss Geraldine A. Smith of Hopewell.

A private service was held. Contributions may be made to the Hopewell Fire Department.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hemphill Gibson, 86, of 68 Stanworth Drive, died August 17 in the Princeton Medical Center. She and her husband, Brownlee H. Gibson, celebrated their 64th wedding anniversary in January.

Born in Pittsburgh, Pa., she had lived in Princeton since 1935.

She was a member of Nassau Presbyterian Church and the Present Day Club of Princeton.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Geer of Stanton; one son, Newton H. of New York; and four grandchildren.

A private service and interment were arranged by the Kimble Funeral Home.

Mrs. Evelyn C. Eoyedy, 57, of 56 Washington Street, Rocky Hill, died August 17 in her home. She was secretary of the Rocky Hill Planning Board.

A native of Newark, she lived in Rocky Hill for the past 11 years and was active in civic affairs there.

Survivors include her husband, Elliott L. Enyedy; one son, Elliott L. Jr. of Manville; one daughter, Mrs. Cynthia A. McLaughlin of Minot, N. D.; her mother, Mrs. Andrew J. Medler of Irvington; and three grandchildren.

A Mass of the Resurrection was celebrated at St. Paul's Church in Princeton. Interment was in Rocky Hill Cemetery. Arrangements were made by the Kimble Funeral Home.

Mrs. Mary C. Oliver, 80, of Burnt Hill Road, Montgomery Township, died August 16 in her home.

Born in Italy, she had also resided in Brooklyn, N.Y. She was the widow of Casper Oliver.

Survivors include two sons, Samuel of Hopewell, and Joseph G. of Montgomery Township; four daughters, Mrs. Anne Sorrero of Yardley, and Mrs. Jennie Ficarra, Mrs. Margaret Mandracchia, and Mrs. Grace Cocciolillo, all of Montgomery Township; one sister, Mrs. Grace Demeo of Brooklyn, N.Y.; and six grandsons.

The funeral and a Mass of the Resurrection were in Hopewell. Interment was in Highlands Cemetery.

Jacob A. Alper, 86, of 159 Van Dyke Road, Hopewell, died August 19 in Trenton. He was a retired bookbinder.

A native of Russia, he had lived in Hopewell for the past 24 years. He was the husband of the late Anna Weinman Alper.

Survivors include one son, Edward of New York; one daughter, Mrs. Selma Kanter of Hopewell; and six grandchildren.

Mrs. Edith R. Gibbs, 82, of Amwell Road, Hopewell Township, died August 18. She was a registered nurse.

Born in England, she formerly lived in Lawrence Township.

Survivors include one son, John Robillard of Pennington; two daughters, Mrs. Nancy Kuzniarik of Robbinsville and Mrs. Dorothy VanLieu of Hopewell; one stepdaughter, Mrs. Mildred G. Groat of Richmond, Calif.; seven grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

ORGANIC GARDENING is just one of the many features inherent in this 3½ acre estate in nearby South Brunswick Township. The land is beautiful—abundant—but not overly thick—with trees. The house is a well-constructed brick ranch with all the nice amenities such as a modern kitchen, baseboard hot water heat and central air conditionng, fireplace, 3 baths, and a 2-car garage. The setting combines a sense of privacy with the feeling of being part of a residential neighborhood. $87,000

IF YOU SPEND AN EVENING YOU'LL WANT TO STAY. For anyone seeking something other than the typical development Colonial, we invite your consideration of this Cape Cod in Hopewell Borough. It features 9 rooms (5 Bedrooms), 2½ baths, large laundry room, fireplace, central air conditioning, finished basement, and 3-car garage. It's on enough space for whiffleball and touch football. On a quiet delightful street and offering a magnificent view. $63,000

JUST A FEW MINUTES FROM THE HEART of Princeton on Rosedale Road in Lawrence Township is this large "American Tudor" with 8 rooms, 2½ baths, fireplace, 2 porches, and 3-car garage. For those with an appreciation of nature, the 2-acre lot is a reward in itself. $93,000

THE COMMUTING CONVENIENCE OF WEST WINDSOR TOWNSHIP and a Custom Colonial combine to make this property well worth looking at. The house features 9 rooms, 2½ baths, fireplace, central air conditioning, workshop, and 2-car garage. The lot is rich with mature shrubbery and includes an enclosed patio that is as pretty as any we've seen. $66,500

ON A 2.3 ACRE LOT IN HOPEWELL TOWNSHIP is this 6-room, 1½ bath Cape Cod near Mount Rose and convenient to Western Electric, E.T.S., and Mobil. An attractive 15-year-old home on a wooded natural setting. $43,000

IN THE NORGATE II AREA of Lawrence Township is this attractive center hall Colonial. Eight rooms (4 bedrooms), 2½ baths, full basement, one-car garage, and a number of extra features including a treed, fenced rear yard. Easy maintenance and easy living at a price of $51,500

APARTMENT, Boyard Lane. $290 per month

Land values are rising everywhere but there are some places where the price of land is so high that it is famous. One of these is the city of London, England. It is worth approximately $1,250 per square foot. This surpasses even Wall Street in New York City. There land can be bought for approximately $1000 per square foot. The French vineyards are also extremely valuable although their value has not recently been estimated.

Make a wise and valuable investment through WALTER B. HOWE INC., 1 Palmer Sq. (924-0095), Pennington (737-3301) and W. Windsor (799-1100). Homes of all descriptions and all prices. Open 9-9. Sat. 9-5. Sun. 1-5. In business since 1885.
